The News Wins

The News was judged the outstanding newspaper in Texas in 1942; again in 1950; and an outstanding weekly paper in the nation in 1943.

On this Thanksgiving Day, 1952, may all our citizens be able to cast aside for the day the troubles which have confronted them throughout the year and to rejoice that "God is in his Heaven, and all is well with the World." We are thankful for the many blessings which have been bestowed on us throughout the past twelve months, and wish on this Thanksgiving Day that blessings shall prevail in every home throughout this area.

"I Voted For Ike" But Do Not Expect Wonders at Once

Some folks are certainly foolish in their attitude toward public officials.

Here comes a mother of a boy in Korea who admits that she voted for General Eisenhower simply because he promised to bring her son home.

Let it be remembered that the General made no such promise. He stated time and again that he would go to Korea to look over the situation and see what could be done about an honorable peace. He did not say that he would bring any boy home, although he openly deplored the terrible mess into which the war in Korea has sunk.

Furthermore, the General will not become President of the United States until January 20. Until that time he has no more authority in Washington than any other citizen. Harry S. Truman will run the affairs of government until January 19, 1953. If any citizen has a gripe about the way things are being handled or mishandled in Washington, he should get on the trail of those who are responsible for the mess, both in Washington and Korea.

Frankly, we are going to make a prediction. We are not military of mind, and know little or nothing about the Korean situation, except that this is a war against the Communists; a war directed from Moscow; with not a single Russian engaged, but with a tragic toll of life among Americans and at a cost of a billion dollars per month of YOUR tax money.

This prediction is that regardless of what happens in Korea that we shall keep large forces of men abroad for many years, keeping an eye on the operation of the Commies in various parts of the world.

Moscow is bleeding America in Korea; bleeding France in Indo-China; bleeding the English in Iran and the Suez; as well as bleeding all of us in Germany. So long as she can keep up this process of bleeding, Stalin and Company have no need for out-right war against us. The Russians are winning their war without the loss of a single man.

Those who voted for General Eisenhower because they wanted their boy started home from Korea the day after election have a long wait in prospect.

Newspapers Fold Up When Not Guided by Experienced Men

A new daily newspaper was started in Pampa last fall.

The publisher was a successful radio owner, automobile agency owner and a man's clothing merchant. But he knew nothing about running a newspaper until he bought some experience.

Other men have tried to publish daily newspapers, only to end in dismay.

This business of running a daily newspaper is no joke, and should not be attempted without a big capital reserve which the publisher is willing to spend while he cultivates his field.

Many a publisher has told the story. A most successful publisher, after 25 years of hard work, finally came through and was most successful at the time of his death.

Many a weekly newspaper publisher has been on the verge of bankruptcy, but has hidden this fact from his creditors, until he finally made the grade.

The publishing business attracts only the hardy individual who is unafraid of long hours, hard work, and slight financial returns.

It is no field for the amateur who is looking for a soft job.

We are always sorry when a newspaper folds up, but let it be remembered that no field is large enough to support two successful daily newspapers until it is in the 150,000 population bracket; and likewise no field is large enough for two successful newspapers until it has reached at least the 10,000 population bracket. The time was when no such high population bracket was necessary—but in these days of high prices and scarce material and labor, all publications are having a tough time to survive.

General Eisenhower Is No Fool in Selecting Assistants

It is very apparent that General Eisenhower is no fool when it comes to evaluating men with whom he will serve.

The fact that President Truman extended to General Eisenhower an invitation to come to Washington and talk over the affairs of state is no indication on the part of weakness on the part of the President; or willingness on the part of the President-elect to become puffy in the hands of Truman. President Hoover invited President-elect FDR to Washington and the latter accepted. This has been the practice of outgoing and incoming chief executives.

The long time between election and the date for the new president to accept office has been criticized. Some folks are under the impression that any person who is big enough to make the race for president should be big enough to immediately accept the responsibilities which go with the office. This is by no means true. Governor Stevenson, if he had been elected, would have needed the 2½ months interval to get ready for his new and bigger job.

General Eisenhower is spending the interval well in making a serious study of the many problems which confront the nation.

One thing is sure and certain: The present system of giving all of the electoral votes to the winner in any state is all wrong and must be corrected before another election rolls around.

Correcting Mistakes in the Election Laws by Experience

It seems that every two years something must take place in the Texas legislature to correct existing evils in the Texas election laws.

We suggest that instead of floundering around with this subject that the lawmakers call in a group of experienced men who have held many elections and let them write some of the provisions.

So far there never has been nor never will be an entirely legal election in Texas. This is due to the many foolish provisions in the law which cannot be carried out.

Election laws can be written so that they are plain and easy to enforce. But it will take experienced men to handle the job, and not amateurs who have done little but cast their ballots.

Money Problems Confront the Texas Legislature Next Year

We have been talking and thinking so much about the financial condition of our federal government that most of us have overlooked the fact that Texas finances are getting in a pretty bad shape and the coming session of the legislature must raise more funds.

Schools of the state, both the common schools and the institutions of higher learning, are hard pressed to get by under the increased cost of operation.

The highway system is in need of more money.

Those on relief rolls have seen the value of their small checks shrink as they meet the high cost of living.

Most public officials ran for public office on the platform of no new taxes. If Texas is to continue meeting its obligations there is no other way out than new taxes, which will bring in more money.

The idea of a general sales tax has been cursed so much by people who have never lived under the tax that all public officials disclaim any interest in the passage of such a measure. The law makers, both in Austin and Washington, have been content with the passage of selective sale tax on various items that they steer clear of a general sales tax.

The bars are down for the passage of a general sales tax if and when some law maker gets up his courage to introduce such a measure.

Price Daniel Is a Democrat, Regardless of His Opponents

Price Daniel, Attorney General of Texas and U. S. Senator-elect, is on a home hunting trip with Mrs. Daniel to Washington.

During the campaign Steve Mitchell, egotistical Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, announced a purge against all Democrats who dared to leave the fold and vote for Eisenhower.

Stooge Mitchell was thoroughly spanked by the voters, including those of Texas. Both Governor Shivers and Price Daniel defied Mitchell and dared him to carry out his threat.

It is now announced that Mitchell is on his way out. Governor Stevenson, head of the Democratic party, sees the error of his way in elevating him to this job of honor and distinction.

Price Daniel, always a Democrat, announces that he will stay with the party, if it wants him. The Democratic party certainly needs Price Daniel, and will give him what he wants to stand hitched, regardless of the Mitchell threat during the campaign.

Neither MacArthur Nor Truman Worth Fabulous Salaries

Some time ago it was announced that General MacArthur had accepted a position with a manufacturing plant at $100,000 per year. So far he has not resigned his commission, or given up any of his five expensive aides.

This week it was announced that a small plant in Texas had offered President Truman a job at $250,000 per year, which was promptly rejected.

Neither of these men is worth the advertised price of his services. The plants offering them jobs are hopeful that their distinguished names would bring them business. Neither of these men is worth the price tags pinned on their names so far as business is concerned.

The idea of selling a name is nothing new, but it is certainly discouraging to the men who work at their jobs and really put over the business enterprises with which they are connected.

Korean Problems Will Be Given Close Examination by General

When General Eisenhower lands in Korea he will have a busy job trying to solve all of the knotty problems which confront this nation. Frankly, it is pretty sponsor of the Korean situation, while the Reds are hard to have much confidence in the United Nations, receiving all of the war material they wish through China; while our forces are tied down to Korea; while we are prohibited from extending the war to North Korea and Red China; while we refuse to use the Nationalists on Formosa; while the war is costing us a billion dollars of the taxpayers money per month and 1500 casualties every week.

If the President-elect is able to put some kind of a break on this outlandish war, even for a week, his time will be well invested for the benefit of the nation.

Happy Thanksgiving to All Readers of The Canyon News

America has much to be thankful for as we pause to celebrate this annual event. It will be a blessed day if all our citizens will stop and reflect at the blessings which we enjoy.

In spite of the war and drouth which causes so much worry among our citizens, there are still plenty of advantages to living here in Randall county; and no one with sanity would trade our lot here for that of citizens of any other nation.

Celebrating Thanksgiving in a safe and sane manner is the great need of the day. We know that this will be the type of observation in most homes in our land.

Happy Thanksgiving to one and to all!

Cabinet Makers Still Have a Big Job on Their Hands

Cabinet makers received one jolt when Governor Thomas E. Dewey announced that he would remain as Governor of New York and not accept the post of Secretary of State in the Eisenhower cabinet. The Governor is right. Eisenhower needs strong friends both in and out of the cabinet.

Senator Taft met with the General in New York and pointed out several strong men for various cabinet members. While making recommendations he did not press any of the men for posts.

Both Dewey and Taft are wise men. They appreciate the fact that it is Eisenhower who will be President on January 20, 1953. They appreciate the fact that the strength or weakness of the Eisenhower administration will depend entirely upon the results of his own work, and not upon the advice of his friends.

While both of these men have decided ideas, which they have given the President-elect, they are not going to force the issue and attempt to run the administration, as Truman, et al, predicted during the heat of the campaign.

Indian Camp Site Shows New Facts

Interesting, and perhaps important, Panhandle archeological finds were made last week near the Adobe Walls Monument by Jack T. Hughes, instructor in geology and curator of paleontology at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum, and Curtis Tunnell, sophomore from Turkey.

An Indian camp site on the J. Evetts Haley ranch was given a "test trench" and in the diggings, Hughes and Tunnell found indications of two or three different tribes or types of people having used the site.

The test hole, about five feet wide, three feet deep, and 15 feet long, was laid down on the site, which was located on a sand terrace near a large spring. The site had evidently been popular, with a good water source and plentiful game.

A rather recent occupation by Indians was indicated by scattered rock fire places in the first strata

Hughes speculated that either two or three different groups or types of Indians had camped there, or that there had been a rather extensive trade among the Panhandle group and Indians of other areas. The culture is placed in about 1250 or 1400.

Member Gives Interpretation Of Bridge Party

The newly organized Din R Bridge Club met in the H. R. Fulton home on Friday evening, Nov. 21. The rooms were beautifully decorated with autumn floral arrangements contributed by H. R.'s Flower Shop (plug). Tables were laden with coffee cups, Philip Morris, Luckies, Old Gold, and Shepherd and Ambrose's 2-for-a-nickel cigars.

Vivid color was added by the gown or frocks worn. The hostess, Mrs. H. R. Fulton, was striking in a brown velvet. Mrs. Holmes Ambrose arrived in gold, next came Mrs. Shepherd in purple, Mrs. Joe Lee in tan, Mrs. Ray Raillard in red, Mrs. Dudley Moore in rust, Mrs. Lewis Stoelzing and Mrs. Gene McGlasson in black, respectively. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lee. Absent were Mr. and Mrs. Borden Price, you missed a good time, Jean.

Concentration was on the yakety-yak at each table rather than on the main purpose of the club—bridge. The most fluent of these talkers was Lewis Stoelzing, aided by several others. Best bridge hand for the entire evening was held by Ray Raillard.

There was a discussion of a civic dance to be held in the V F W. Hall in the near future, we hope. Beans and salad were discussed by the girls for our next meeting. Last minute prizes were decided upon when the Moores won low prize. H. R. dashed madly next door for gifts, thank goodness there was a store open at that hour (another plug).

The party ended with Ambrose's beating the drum and the Moores behind the 8 ball. Oops, almost forgot, a delicious turkey dinner began our evening of fun. More next month at the Stoelzing home, keep listening. Respectfully submitted by Doris Moore.

Roots Celebrate 25th Anniversary At Home Sunday

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Root was the scene of that couple's 25th wedding anniversary Sunday, November 23. Actually their anniversary was not until the following day but the celebration of the event occurred on Sunday for the sake of convenience.

Many visitors came by during the course of the afternoon and many lovely gifts were received. Open house was held during the afternoon between 2:30 and 5:30 and in the evening from 7 to 9. The house was decorated throughout with fall flowers.

The table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with white candles. The anniversary cake was topped with "25th" and the names, "Theresa and Gene."

A total of 65 people signed the guest book during the afternoon and evening.

Buffalo Masquers To Be Busy After Thanksgiving

During the Thanksgiving holidays W. A. Moore, assistant professor of speech at West Texas State College, will be visiting relatives in Oklahoma. He will return to work at the college Monday, Dec. 1, to face a full schedule.

On the second of December the Buffalo Masquers, a dramatic club in the speech department, will present a one-act play, "Undercurrent." Darlene Gray is student director of the play. Mr. Moore supervises the direction of the Buffalo Masquers.

One of the recent one-act plays given by the group was a Tennessee Williams' play, "The Long Goodbye." The play was well done with Dick Houston, Ruth Harmon, and Ruth Hilbert taking the leading roles. An excellent job of student directing was done by Fred Salmans.

Another play planned for the near future is "Where the Cross is Made." The play is written by Eugene O'Neill. Student director for this play will be Ruth Hilbert.

Ex WT Teacher Starts Personal Problem Clinic

MRS. T. V. REEVES

"People are my hobby," said Mrs. T. V. Reeves recently and she proved the statement by announcing that she was going into the field of personal counseling for adults. The announcement came after 25 years of teaching and directing the Bureau of Public Service at West Texas State College.

Mrs. Reeves decided to use her office instead of locating in some large office building in a larger city. She says distance is no serious obstacle on the plains today. About a month ago she sent out her announcements that she was starting her counseling service and to date she has already had one person in from about 150 to the west and also from the same distance to the north.

Before her marriage to T. V. Reeves, who passed away about a year ago, Mrs. Reeves was Lucille Sale. She was born in Adair, Iowa, and at the age of 12 years she was able to pass a teacher's examination test. She has studied at such places as the Presbyterian Preparatory School, Geneseo Collegiate Institute, Western Illinois State College, Colorado College at Greeley, West Texas State, Texas Tech, and the University of Chicago.

Education and experience equip her well for the field of work she is now entering. At the age of 15 she started writing for pay and she has the distinction of being one of the earliest members of the Panhandle Pen Women and served that organization as president. She has worked in stores and offices in various capacities and has come into contact with many of the problems similar to those with which she will be working.

Some of the organizations in which Mrs. Reeves holds membership are National Education Association, National Adult Education, Texas State Teachers, Texas, Amarillo and National Societies for Mental Health. She is one of the board of directors of the Seventh District Federation of Women's Clubs, and for nine years has served that organization as district program chairman.

Mrs. Reeves also holds membership in many honorary societies. They include the Delta Kappa Gamma, Pi Chapter, and Kappa Delta Pi. She is also active in church work, and a member of the Presbyterian church.

Thus a rich field of education and experience go with Mrs. Reeves in the field of adult counseling.

CARS ON CREDIT

More than 63 per cent of all new and used cars purchased in this country in 1951 were bought on installment payments, according to a credit official. In 1946, only 42.06 per cent of the new car sales and 58.09 per cent of the used-car sales were financed through consumer credit. It is estimated that 13,500,000 cars were bought last year, and that 63.62 per cent of the new car sales and 63.89 per cent of the used-car sales were on credit.

NEW-FOUND POPULARITY

Avoca, Pa. — Bob and John Doland, aged 8 and 10, respectively, were tremendously enjoying their popularity among the children of the neighborhood, after they had given away more than 100 tickets to a local high school football game. Their father, John Doland, a school director, had brought the tickets home and placed them in a drawer for "safe-keeping." Bob and John took over from there.

BANK LOANS

The Federal Reserve Board has reported that total loans at member banks increased approximately 1.5 per cent from June 30 to Sept. 5th, rising to a total of $52,068,000,000 at all member banks. Commercial and industrial loans rose $241,000,000 during the period, to a total of $23,973,000,000. Agricultural loans went up $181,000,000 to $2,445,000,000.

Reception Honors Dr. and Mrs. Black

More than 50 guests braved the cold Tuesday evening to attend a reception given in the W. C. Black home to honor Dr. and Mrs. Bradford Black of Miami, Florida.

Guests were greeted by the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Black and Dr. and Mrs. Black, who were married in Miami on November 15, and arrived in Canyon Monday to visit with relatives while they are enroute to New Mexico on their wedding trip.

Yellow and white giant and baby mums formed the centerpiece of the serving table from which Mrs. Henry Bradford, grandmother of the bridegroom, and Miss Pearl Black, aunt of the bridegroom, presided at the punch bowl. Individual cakes decorated with gold wedding bands, yellow and white mints and assorted nuts were served from crystal services. Tall white tapers flanking the centerpiece completed the appointments of the table.

Dr. and Mrs. Black will be at home in Miami after December 15.

A. A. U. W. TO MEET

The business meeting will be preceded by a short social hour. This meeting is the deadline for dues. All members are urged to be present.

SEVERS BROTHERS ARM

Rochester, Ind. — When his twin brother, Lloyd, 41-year-old teacher, caught his left hand in a corn picker, Lester took direct action, cutting off the arm two inches above the wrist with a pocket knife. The teacher, meanwhile, using his free hand, applied a tourniquet with a handkerchief. His condition was reported "fair" in hospital.

8 Inches Snow Falls

Snow blanketed the Panhandle Tuesday morning, bringing needed moisture to the dry, thirsty ground. Nearly an inch of moisture was measured out as a result of the seven to eight inches of snow which fell over the area.

The drought which has prevailed over all of Texas seems to have been broken as a result of this continued snow. The moisture was even heavier over West Texas. Some sections which had received no moisture for nearly two years received heavy rains before the snow started on the Plains.

Slight snow started to fall Sunday. By noon Monday this area had received .20 of an inch of moisture.

During Monday afternoon snow fell at intermittent periods. When night came to the Plains, snow started falling in earnest. By morning the ground was blanketed with heavy snow, although a stiff north wind was blowing, which whipped the snow into banks on the east and west roads.

The highway department warned all drivers to beware of the snow and ice and to stay off of the highways until a clear signal had been given. There was light traffic on all highways Tuesday as a result of the heavy snow during the preceding night.

Latest Rumors From Political Front of Nation

John Foster Dulles plans a thorough reorganization of the Department of State to get rid of left-wing elements and to relieve the Secretary of detail so that he can devote his time and energy to policy making. The State Department under a Republican Administration will experience some of the same treatment that the Commerce Department underwent when Franklin Roosevelt took over from Herbert Hoover in 1933.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., retiring Senator from Massachusetts, could have had a job in the Eisenhower Cabinet but preferred to serve as a more personal representative of the President in special jobs.

Latin-American nations, in a diplomatic way, are letting it be known that they would be very pleased with the choice of Nelson Rockefeller as Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American affairs. Mr. Rockefeller is popular in a part of the world that feels neglected by U. S. at this time.

Homer Ferguson, Senator from Michigan, would have been asked to join the Eisenhower Cabinet as Attorney General if it were not for the fact that Michigan has a Democratic Governor and would appoint a Democrat to the Senate. With a tie vote in that body, Republicans could not afford to lose a member.

Senator Harry Byrd, of Virginia, was confronted with a number of political problems in his State that made it difficult for him to take a receptive attitude toward a place in the Eisenhower Cabinet. The Democratic Senator was one of three men recommended by Senator Robert Taft for places in the Republican Cabinet now being put together.

Dwight Eisenhower, when in the White House, will not press European nations to send larger forces to help in the war against Communists in Korea. The Eisenhower plan, instead, is to shift the main fighting burden of that war to South Koreans.

Senator Taft and General Eisenhower have a clear understanding of the sharp demarcation of authority and responsibility between the executive and legislative arms of the Government. Republican leaders of these two arms of Gov-

Cowboys Pummel Buffaloes 25-6 Saturday p. m.

The Hardin-Simmons Cowboys romped over the West Texas State College Buffaloes 25-6 at Abilene Saturday afternoon. Robert Whelchel, a sophomore from Claude, carried the lone TD for the Buffs. Although the Herd held the Cowboys fairly well during the first two periods of the game, the Hardin-Simmons crew proved again that they are a strong team, particularly in the fourth quarter. It was during this period that they made their final touchdown and killed any flickering hopes the Buffs might pull an upset.

The Abilene tilt was the eighth of the season for the Buffaloes.

The Herd has three wins and five losses at present and the Thanksgiving game will be against Texas Western Thursday afternoon in El Paso.

String Ensemble At W. T. Provides For Luncheon Clubs

A dinner ensemble, "Strings Alamo," has been organized to provide music for civic clubs, luncheons, teas, and banquets, as well as campus functions, from the West Texas State College orchestra, according to Lewis Stoelzing, director.

The new group is one of several recently organized, or being organized, to serve the community. Stoelzing said. A second group, the West Texas State String Quartet, assisted Miss Matilda Gaume, assistant professor of music, in a recent recital.

Members of the "Strings Alamo" are Wayne Hinds and Miss Alma Watson, Amarillo, violins; Stoelzing, viola; Miss Doris Joens, Davenport, Iowa, cello; Miss Yvonne Cavender, Amarillo, string bass; and Miss Donna Erwin, Canyon, piano.

Hinds, Stoelzing, Miss Watson, and Miss Joens make up the String Quartet. Planned is a string choir, made up of the string section of the orchestra, regular string classes at West Texas State, and community people interested in playing string music.

Willson Lectures Set Dec. 2-5

Dr. E. J. Carnell Is Speaker For Seventh Campus Series

Dr. Edward John Carnell, chairman of the department of Apologetics at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif., will be speaker for the annual Willson Lectures, Dec. 2-5, President James P. Cornette has announced.

Dr. Carnell's appearance at West Texas State is the seventh of the Willson Lecture series, which were begun in 1947 by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Willson of Floydada. The couple donated $15,000 to sponsor the series, which are for the purpose of fostering and developing nondenominational religious thought on the part of the students of this institution.

Previous speakers for the series have been Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, pastor of the Central Woodward Christian Church, Detroit, the late Dr. Harry Rimmer, California scientist, and Charles A. Wells, Christian journalist, editor, and cartoonist, who appeared last year for the second time.

First Lecture

First lecture will be held Tuesday morning, Dec. 2, in the Administration Building auditorium, and will be a required assembly. Dr. Carnell will speak again Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10, and will talk at one of the Canyon churches Wednesday night. He will also speak that week for the Canyon Rotary and Lions clubs.

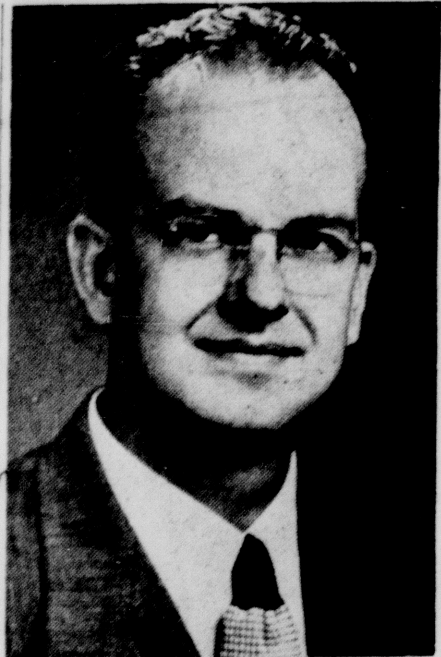

Lectures announced by Dr. Carnell are: "Locating a Point of Starting," "Courage to Venture a Hypothesis," "Boldness to Accept Implications," and "The Sum of the Matter."

Dr. Carnell is the author of four books, the first of which won a $5,000 prize in the Eerdmans Publishing Company book award for 1948. Since its publication the book has passed through three editions. It is titled "An Introduction to Christian Apologetics."

Books

His other volumes are "Television: Servant or Master?," a volume which analyzes the impact of television upon our contemporary cultural scene; "The Theology of Reinhold Niebuhr," a work which analyzes the theological, philosophical position of Niebuhr; and "A Philosophy of the Christian Religion."

Dr. Carnell was born in Antigo, Wisconsin, in 1919, the son of a

Baptist minister. After graduating from Wheaton College in 1941, cum laude, he was graduated in 1944 from Westminster Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, receiving the degrees of Bachelor of Theology and Master of Theology simultaneously. He majored in Apologetics.

Prize Winner

In the course of his seminary study, Dr. Carnell won the William Brenton Green prize in Apologetics for his thesis, "The Influence of the Philosophy of Immanuel Kant on the Theology of Frederick Schleiermacher." He was ordained a minister in the Baptist denomination in 1944.

Dr. Carnell was graduated from the Harvard Divinity School in 1948, having received the degrees of Master of Sacred Theology and Doctor of Theology, and in 1949 he received the Doctor of Philosophy degree, with a major in philosophy, from Boston University.

In 1945, Dr. Carnell was appointed an instructor in philosophy at Gordon College of Theology and Missions in Boston. Soon thereafter he was appointed instructor in philosophy of religion at Gordon Divinity School. He held these posts three years, before going to Fuller Theological Seminary.

Thanksgiving

The one day of the year dedicated to giving thanks for the many blessings we enjoy as Americans... the one day when many will pause to say a prayer for peace throughout the world, for plentiful and nourishing food for everyone, for integrity and honesty in governments, and for love and understanding in the home. May the prayers of Americans for these things be answered.

School Rated as Excellent By Evaluating Group

R. A. Selby of Amarillo was the coordinator of an evaluation program conducted in the Canyon Public School System last week. The overall report, completed last Thursday, was excellent and took in the broad scope of the entire needs of students. The committee recognized the existing facilities offered through the college in the report.

One of the main points of the report was the curriculum offered by the school was ahead of the facilities. This was a great commendation for the faculty of the school. The reports on the findings of the committee were given Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in the high school auditorium.

After calling the meeting to order, Joe Gibson, Canyon Public School superintendent, turned the program over to Coordinator R. A. Selby.

The report for the school-wide evaluation committee was given by J. W. Dillard, of Borger, and Ray Vineyard of Dumas. George Graham of Hereford gave the report on the school staff and administration, transportation, and cafeterias.

Sam Bryan of Tulsa gave the report on guidance and pupil activity. The report on the program of studies was given by Elmer Moore of Shamrock and the report for the elementary school committees was given by Mrs. John Shewbert, who was also coordinator of the elementary evaluation division.

The committee noticed the relationship between pupil and pupil, teacher and pupil, and teacher and teacher. The instructors were also commended in other ways. Their qualifications was one of the factors that was noted. Twenty-nine of the Canyon teachers hold master degrees.

Supt. Gibson and Principal Miller desired to make special commendations for such organizations as the Rotary Club, Lions Club, F. T. A., Homemaking department, and the P.T.A. The Rotary Club had the visiting committee with them for luncheon on Tuesday of last week. On Wednesday the Lions had as their program speaker, R. A. Selby, the committee coordinator.

F. T. A. members served the committee tea and the homemaking department prepared and served a luncheon for the committee. After the reports were given, the P.T.A. served tea and coffee for the visiting group.

CENTREVIEW H. D. CLUB PLANS THANKSGIVING, CHRISTMAS

The Centreview Home Demonstration Club met Friday afternoon, November 21, at 2:30 with Annie Read as hostess. The meeting was under the direction of Vivian Myers. Madge Sutton called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting.

During the business session plans were completed for the Thanksgiving supper. It was also decided that the club would have their annual Christmas tree at the Fairview school house on Saturday evening, December 21.

Laudie Brazil, Ora Evans, and Madge Sutton were appointed to buy and sack the treats, Colleen Schaeffer, La Venia Amerson, Ora Evans and Inez Shipman to decorate the tree and plan the party.

Everyone present was asked to bring exchange gifts and members are to bring the gift made from a yard of material. It was decided to have a drawing gift for both men and women.

At the conclusion of the business meeting pumpkin pie and cocoa were served to Vivian Myers, Grace Schaeffer, Madge Sutton, Ora Evans, La Venia Amerson, Lizzie Wesley, Theo Wise, Colleen Schaeffer, Laudie Brazil, and Evelyn Shipman by the hostess.

CUBS OF DEN 4 MEET IN HOME OF STUART CONDRON MONDAY

Den 4 met in the home of its den mother, Mrs. Stuart Condron, on Monday. The meeting opened with a new yell. After the collection of dues, a hand-clapping game was played. James Boyd led the game, after which the advancement chart was colored.

All boys helped plan their stunt for the Pack meeting. A game, bird, beast, and fish, was played.

The meeting was closed with the living circle led by the denner, Bob Condron. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Sheets to James Boyd, Eugene Blasdel, Bob Condron, Jesse Sheets, Dewayne Clay, Dewayne Kiser, and Marvin Hutton.

Mrs. Sherwood Blasdel served as den mother for the meetings on November 12 and 17. Mrs. Ray Cole assisted on the 12th. Mrs. Jim Boyd served refreshments on the 12th and Mrs. Ralph McCormack furnished refreshments on the 17.

Ten boys attended each meeting. The time was spent in hiking, collecting, tracking, and exploring.

BROWNIES OF TROOP 12 ENJOY MEETING AND TREAT MONDAY

The Brownies of Troop 12 met Monday for their meeting. The president called the meeting to order and the secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting.

One of the leaders read a story and some poems. In unison they said the Brownie Promise. Afterward they hiked to the Canyon Drug for a treat and the meeting was adjourned.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gerald and children of Irving are visiting relatives and friends here.

Oldest Songbird Again Pleases Tin-Pan-Alley

GLADSTONE, N.J.—Alfred Bryan, who was 81 recently, was signed by Irving Caesar, New York song publisher, to a ten-year contract, renewable upon expiration. But Bryan has announced that Mr. Caesar gets no credit for discovering unknown talent in this case.

Bryan is the author of the lyrics of "Come, Josephine, in my Flying Machine," "Dardanella," "Peg o' My Heart," "Daddy, You've Been a Mother to Me," "Brown Eyes, Why Are You Blue?" "Madelon," "There's Danger in Your Eyes, Cherie" and, by his own rough estimate, 1,000 others.

For a friend of his named Anna Held, he wrote "I Want to Be Good but My Eyes Won't Let Me." She sang it in the show, "Follow Me." His songs also were featured in innumerable Shubert musicals. In one of them, at the old Winter Garden, Mae West had her first feature part, playing Cleopatra in Mr. Bryan's number, "Shakespeare's Garden of Love." During two years in Hollywood, while under contract to Warner Brothers, he wrote "Song of the Nile."

Although he is widely considered the dean of living American popular song writers, it was only a few months ago that Mr. Bryan turned out his first lyrics since his "Puddin' Head Jones" became a hit nearly twenty years ago.

One of his biggest successes, "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier," is rather in limbo these days, although Mr. Bryan likes to think that "the boys in Korea probably sing it just like the boys in France did during World War I."

Whipsaw Enables Man To Have Slick Floor

RACINE, Wis.—The whipsaw brought polished floors to pioneer America.

Lacking tools, the first settlers got along with earthen and stone floors, according to historical researchers. But the introduction of the whipsaw—a long, flexible, two-man blade—enabled the pioneers to turn out flooring almost as smooth and resplendent as the parquet in the castles of Europe.

To hold the plank flooring firm, pioneers drove wooden pegs through to the supporting beams. Protruding tops of the pegs were cut off flush with the surface of the floor.

Many of these early plank floors still maintain their colonial splendor today, enriched through centuries of wax maintenance.

Beauty Spurns Prince And Sends Him Away

HATTIEBURG, Miss.—This is almost a fairy story—one of those beauty-wins-prince creations.

The prince is Abdullah Al Faisal Al Saud of Saudi Arabia, grandson of King Abdul Aziz Abdun Rahman Al Faisal. The beauty is Miss Carla Ann Cox of Hattiesburg, winner in a recent Hattiesburg beauty contest.

Both were visiting in New Orleans. They met and talked.

The prince asked Carla to go to Arabia with him but she spurned his proposal. However, before bidding him good-bye, she consented to give him her address.

Several days later she received a present from the prince. It was a bride doll—almost as big as a five-year-old child.

There the story ends—except that Carla was delighted. Carla is five, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Cox Jr., and winner of a tiny-tot bathing beauty contest.

Active Life Defeats Cancer, Woman Says

COLUMBUS, O.—A determined Columbus woman believes that you can beat cancer if you don't give in. Her life proves it. She is publishing a book on how she lived with cancer, organizing a national dog club, and taking care of four youngsters in her spare time.

Mrs. Edna Kaehle, 42, listened to the doctors' ominous pronouncement in 1946. Then she set out to prove they were wrong.

The attractive brunette admits she had had no treatment for four years. That long ago, she was down to 90 pounds. Today she still has cancer of the stomach, which the doctor tells her is malignant. But she no longer feels she is living on the brink of death. And her energy confounds more modest women.

In her book, she will tell how she fought through—with faith, and the moral support of her sister and 15-year-old daughter, Sharon.

Her theory is that the body just naturally wants to resist any foreign invasion, whether it's cancer, die of fright. They just give up.

Mrs. Kaehle admits many doctors contradict the theories she advances in her book, but adds:

"The very fact that I'm here talking to you is proof that there is some truth to them. Maybe I'm an exception, but my faith carried me through, and there's no reason why it won't do the same for others, if they just don't give up at the mention of the word cancer."

Joe Findley In Thanksgiving Talk To Rotary Club

Joe Findley, assistant Professor of Education, talked on Thanksgiving Tuesday at the Rotary Club luncheon.

A series of jokes were the basis of the talk, all of which referred to Thanksgiving. The speaker called attention to the fact that sometimes those who have undergone the hardest times are the ones who are the most thankful. Deep down in their hearts they are thankful in spite of their limitations.

However, the speaker called attention to many who enjoy the most in life and often thankful and give thanks for the privileges which they enjoy.

The speaker stated that all should be thankful for the ignorance which are ours. Those who admit ignorance are pretty apt to be receptive to the better things of life.

A lesson was drawn from the attitude of dogs toward people. Dogs are usually friendly when folks are friendly to them; likewise many of them retaliate in kind against those who would abuse the dog. The speaker advised that all persons be sensitive to the good things of life.

Many a person who is down right ugly reveal a receptive heart, and a wonderful disposition.

In these days of wonder, all should remember that "God is not finished." When Thanksgiving was started, the pilgrims had only wild turkey. Now we have television. The blessings have changes but not finished.

Rev. Lester Hill was introduced as a new member of the club by Rev. Win Matsler.

There were only two visitors present: Don Savage of Berkeley, Calif., and Jack Hughes of Canyon.

Dr. Cornette and Faculty Members to State Convention

President James P. Cornette and three members of the West Texas State College faculty will attend sessions of the Texas State Teachers Association in El Paso this week-end. Two others will attend a conference in Dallas.

Dr. Cornette plans to see the West Texas State-Texas Western football game Thursday, attend sessions of the T. S. T. A., which open Thursday and conclude Saturday, and attend a meeting of the Board of Regents of Texas State Teachers Colleges.

Dr. Ruth Lowes, professor of elementary education, Dr. Murry Measamer, professor of geography, and Dr. Crannell Tolliver, professor of speech, plan to attend at least part of the association meetings. Dr. Tolliver is executive secretary of the Texas Speech Association, which is meeting concurrently with the T. S. T. A.

Dr. Ima C. Barlow and Dr. Hattie Anderson, both professors of history, will attend a joint meeting of the Texas and American Councils of Social Studies in Dallas Friday.

Foster Insurance in Top Spot in Bowling

Foster Insurance team gained a more secure hold on first place by dropping Miller Radio and TV 3½ to ½. This loss dropped Millers into third place.

City Barber Shop and Cooper's Market tied, 2-2. This left Cooper's Market in last place and gave City Barber Shop second place.

George's Gulf Service Station defeated Gerner's in fourth and dropped that team to fifth.

The league will observe the Thanksgiving holidays this week, but when play is resumed on Dec. 4, sixth place Cooper's Market will challenge fifth place Gerner's Texaco Service Station.

Third place Miller Radio and TV will tangle with second place City Barber Shop. This leaves fourth place George's Gulf Service Station trying to keep first place Foster's Insurance Company from tightening their grip on that position.

Blizzard Delays Special Trial

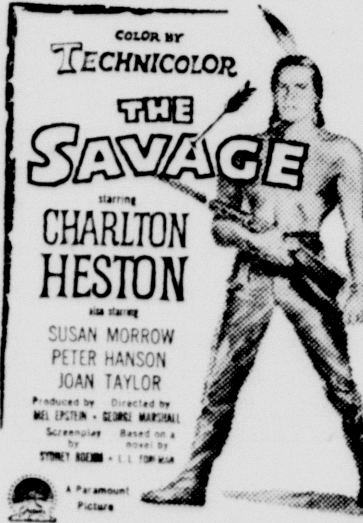

The blizzard that swooped down during the first days of this week brought to a grinding halt the wheels of justice in Judge Henry S. Bishop's 47th District Court. A special venire was called for Monday morning in an armed robbery case. By Tuesday morning only eight of the 12 man jury had been selected.

Because the blizzard prevented witnesses, jurors, as well as attorneys from being present Tuesday, the trial was put off and will probably be held some time in February.

Two Ex-Students Relive WT Days At German Army Camp

Two former students of West Texas State were featured in an article appearing in the Amarillo Daily News dated Tuesday, November 18, written by Grace Halsell, Daily News Special Correspondent. James E. Morgan and Frank L. Stallings who were at one time attending WT at the same time met in Frankfurt, Germany, after both had spent months of intensive training at Fort Ord, Calif., without knowing the other was anywhere about.

Frank is a former editor of The Prairie from Pampa. James is a former student manager at the college who hails from Vega. Both men met their wives while attending school on the campus and both wives still live in Canyon.

Stallings' son, David, was born on the 17th of September during his dad's crossing of the Atlantic on the way to Germany.

The main fault the boys seem to find with life over there is the fact that they cannot afford to have their wives and families join them. The article stated that Stallings said he knew of only one man below the rank of sergeant who was able to bring his wife to Germany.

Morgan, who is a company clerk, spends a great deal of time in the hillside digging foxholes and trenches of the country around the place where the boys are stationed. They are not as lucky as some of the American soldiers who find themselves stationed along the Rhine who live in a simple luxury compared to the 12th Infantry Regiment of the Fourth Division, the unit the men are attached with in Germany.

The unit celebrated its second anniversary of reactivation in October, the article said.

Floydada Visitors Given Reception

There were 740 Floydada visitors who came in by special train for Friday night's football game between the Eagles and the Whirlwinds. They were met at the station by members of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce and the Quarterback Club who played host in getting the visitors to the football stadium.

One of the means of getting the visitors to the stadium was school buses supplied by Canyon High School. Some private cars were also used. There were approximately 40 cars of people who turned out to greet the Floydada visitors. Those who were in private cars and were needed helped transport the visiting football fans to the game.

Just before the game started Mayor A. L. Walsh delivered a welcoming address to the visitors. Canyon High School Band members were at the gate to greet the guests musically as they entered the stadium.

The promptness of the transportation from the station to the stadium was shown in the time required to get the visitors to the field. The train arrived at 7:35 o'clock Friday evening and through the excellent cooperation of local people the visitors were transported to the football field by 7:50.

West Texas State has been a member of the association since 1925. Dr. Juniper attended the conference last year, and is particularly interested this year in the Conference of Academic Deans of the Southern States and a meeting of the Commission on Colleges and Universities.

STRIKES

Idleness caused directly by work stoppages totaled 3,200,000 man-days in September, which was fifty per cent more than in August, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The September, 1951, total was 2,540,000 and the 1947-49 average for the same month was 3,590,000.

RETAIL FOOD INDEX

The retail food index declined one-tenth of one per cent between October 15th and 27th, the third straight half-month period to show a decline. Lower prices for meats, poultry and fish were responsible for the decline.

WRONG BOY

Liverpool, England. — At the same time that Roy Thompson, 10, went into a hospital to have a metal splinter taken from his hand, David Thompson, also 10, entered the hospital to have his appendix removed. The hospital staff is still trying to figure out how it happened that the appendix that came out belonged to Roy. Discovering their mistake, the horrified surgeons quickly wheeled David into the operating room and whipped out the right appendix. Roy still had the splinter in his hand.

DOG CAUSES WRECK

Washington, D. C. — Mrs. Roger J. Browne, of Arlington, Va., returned from grocery shopping, parked in her sloping driveway, pulled up the handbrake and began taking groceries into the kitchen. Lulubelle, the Browne's 4-year-old boxer, was on the front seat and in the back were the Browne's children, Mickey, 5, and Jennifer, 3. Somehow, the dog hit the handbrake and the car began rolling downhill. Mrs. Browne, in trying to pull the brake, was pinned under the car and suffered a fractured pelvis. A passing mailman, Robert A. Martin, released her.

When the man for whom the West Texas city of Kermit was named died in Alaska, the Winkler County News gave this historical sketch:

Kermit Roosevelt was a young man when the promoters of the townsite that was to become Kermit began pondering on a name for the place. His father, Theodore Roosevelt, still was President.

At first it was proposed to call the embryo town Una, after Una Hutchinson, wife of the owner of the townsite property. But it was discovered that there already was a Una in Texas.

So another name was sought. A contest was held, and the name Kermit was chosen, to compliment the President's son. Some say the name was chosen to flatter the President, "Teddy," into buying Kermit township lots heavily. If so, the plan failed dismally.

At any rate, the town was named for Kermit Roosevelt, who in later years was a shipping executive, big game hunter, explorer and author.

Man is the child of soil and sun and sky; and, try as he may to forget that fact by imprisoning himself in cities, there is a longing in his heart for the untainted air and boundless freedom of nature, for the great sweeps of prairies, for the mysterious shades of forests, for the heights of towering mountains, for the rugged depths of canyons and for the silence, peace and calm of the great outdoors.

When feet that long have trod pavement tread upon the velvety grass, there comes a thrill; and upon the ear that for months has heard naught but the noises of the city, the simplest song of a bird falls with sweetness.

To the man who has hardly seen a tree for flower, the abundance of green and growing things in the country is a revelation and a delight. The placid cow is a lesson in contentment. The apple and the plum are miracles. The splendor of the dying day stirs his soul; the twilight deepening into darkness moves him to profound thoughts; and the quiet of the night brings him rest, unbroken and complete, that is as balm to the mind and body, leaving him strengthened and refreshed, and ready for the tasks of the new day.

SOLOMON'S JUDGMENT

The story of a French judge is currently being told around Paris. It seems a new fanatical religious sect was going to crucify one of its members whom they believed to be the new messiah, but local officials took preventive action and haled the participants before the judge.

After hearing all the arguments, the judge said:

"All right, my friends. If your religion demands it, you may crucify him. But I must warn you of one thing. If your messiah is not resurrected in three days, I'll have you all hanged."

Congratulations?

Mr. B.: "Pete Smith sure is on the way to being a pauper."

Mrs. B.: "Why how nice, dear. Does he want a boy or a girl?"

Comes The Light

Junior: "I hear old Prof Biggs sat up all night trying to find the solution to a problem in mathematics."

Senior: "Is that so. Did he have any luck?"

Junior: "Oh, yes. Toward morning it dawned on him."

Sure Sign

Myrt: "Do you suppose they're newlyweds?"

Marge: "Certainly not."

Myrt: "What makes you so sure?"

Marge: "Didn't you notice that he let her carry her own bag?"

SLOW DOWN!

Two young Englishmen were in a row boat in the middle of the ocean. One handled the oars, rowing away for all he was worth. The other sat in the stern, steering the boat by means of a makeshift rudder.

Suddenly, a liner came into view. The man at the oars kept rowing frantically, pausing only when the liner crossed the path of the small boat. Then he cupped his hands.

"Hey, there!" he shouted. "Is this the Atlantic or the Pacific?"

A sailor aboard the big vessel gazed down at the row boat.

"This is the Pacific," he shouted back.

The rudder-man waved his fist at the oarsman.

"You hear that, you fool!" he howled. "I told you not to row so fast!"

Not Satisfied

Mrs. Jones: "John says he'd like to take a trip around the world."

Mrs. Smith: "How perfectly wonderful. Aren't you thrilled?"

Mrs. Jones: "Oh, I don't know, I really think I'd rather go somewhere else."

Young Politician

Teacher—"Johnny, spell gravy."

Politician's Son—"G-r-a-f-t."

NEW GENERATION

An elderly woman was escorting two little girls around the zoo. While they were looking at the stork, she told them the legend of the ungainly bird—how it was instrumental in bringing them to their mammas.

The children looked at each other with sly glances, and presently one whispered to the other: "Don't you think we ought to tell the dear old thing the truth?"

SUGGESTION

"My dear," said Mrs. Newlywed, her face flushed with the excitement of her afternoon in the kitchen, "I want you to be perfectly frank with me now. What would you suggest to improve these doughnuts I made today?"

"Well," replied Mr. Newlywed, lifting one with a slight effort, "I think it might be better if you made the hole bigger."

Capable

Harry: "Is the boss a clever man, really?"

Larry: "You bet he is. He can draw all sorts of confusion from a few facts."

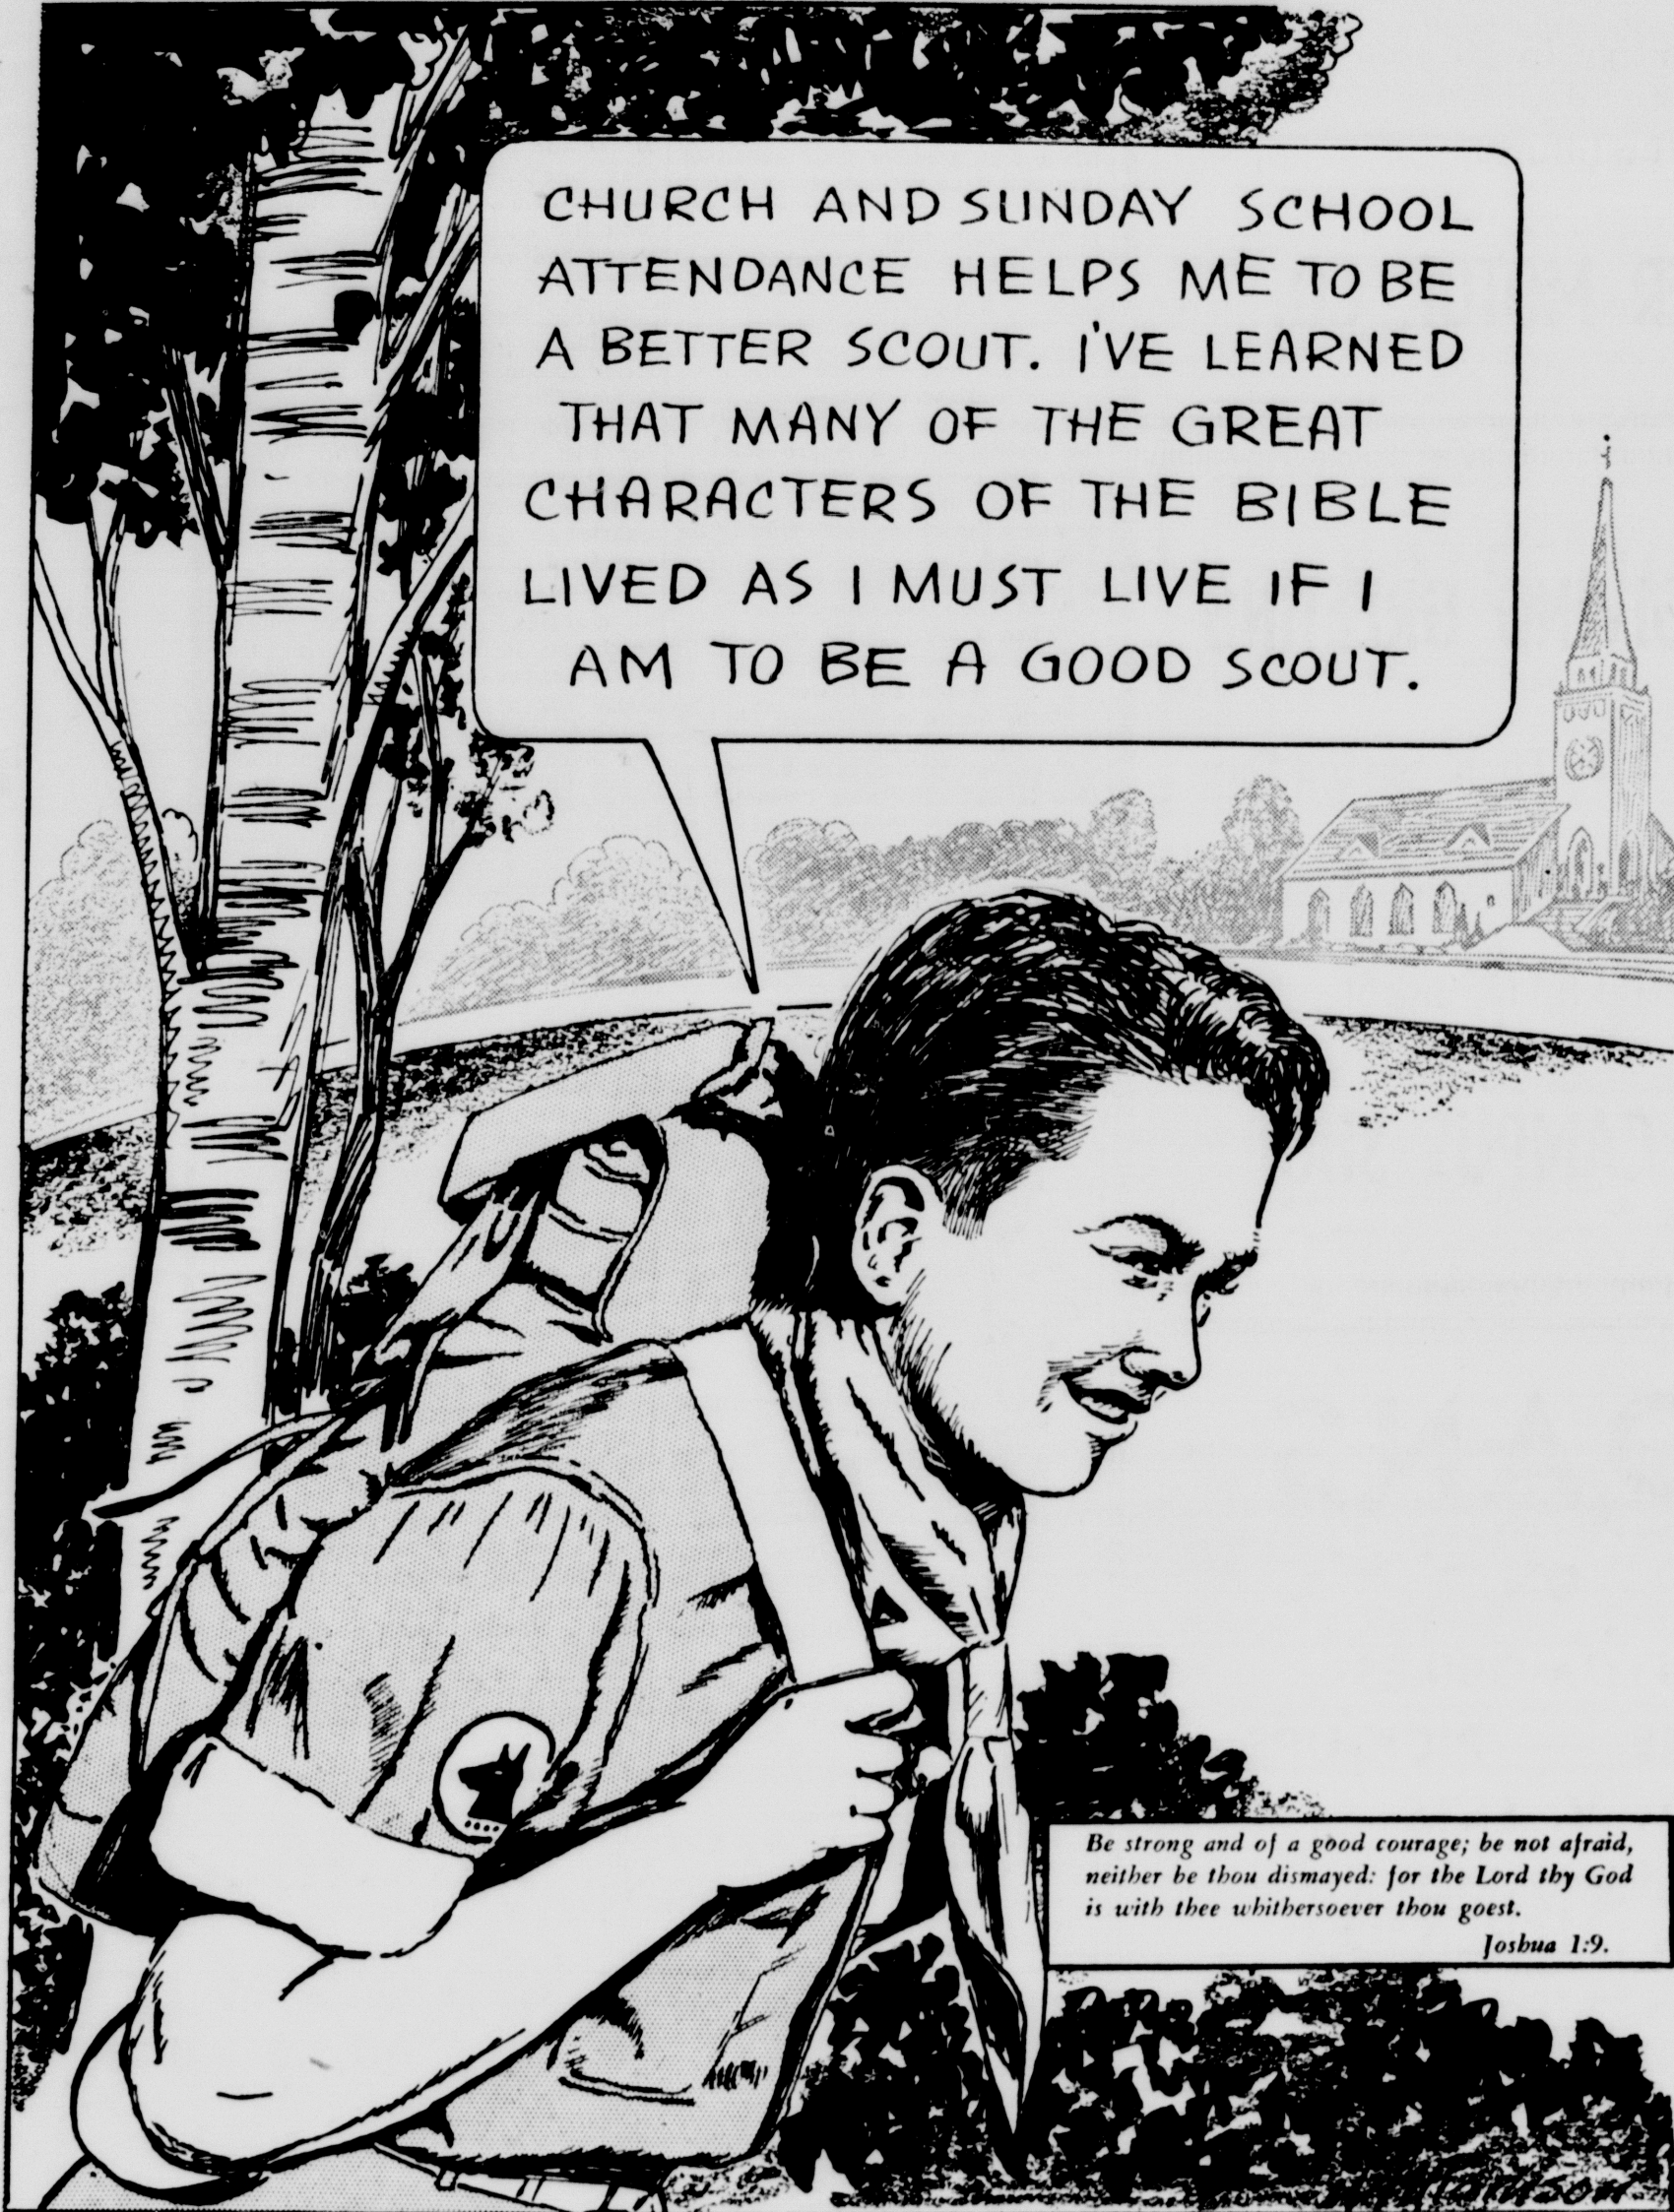

Ain't It Great

Mabel: "Ain't the radio a wonderful thing, though?"

Myrtle: "Yeah, it soertainly is. It even learns ya how to pronounce words."

Best of wishes for a Happy Thanksgiving. Stevens Floral.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

A young matron in whom the shopping instinct was strong asked a butcher the price of a hamburger steak.

"Twenty-five cents a pound," he replied.

"But," she said, "the price at the corner store is only twelve cents."

"Vel," asked Otto, "why don't you buy it down there?"

"They haven't any," she explained.

"Oh, I see," replied the butcher.

"Ven I don't have it I sell for ten cents."

What Else?

"When you have your tonsils removed they call it a tonsillectomy. When they remove your appendix they call it an appendectomy. What do they call it when they remove a growth from your head?"

"I give up, sonny. What do they call it when they remove a growth from your head?"

"A haircut."

Unseen Voices

A psychiatric board was testing the mentality of a Negro soldier. "Do you ever hear voices without being able to tell who is speaking or where the voices come from?" he was asked.

"Yes, suh," answered the Negro.

"And when does this occur?"

"When I answers de telephone."

Would Be Better

"Your fiance is charming. He has a certain something."

"Yes, but father says he wishes George had something certain."

Started Something

The wife, working a crossword puzzle, turned to her mate.

"What is a female sheep, dear?"

"Ewe," he replied without looking up—and the fight was on!

GOOD WORKER

"Rastus," said old Judge Prouty, "do you think it's right to leave your wife hard at work over the washtub while you pass your time fishing?"

"Yas, sah," replied the darky earnestly. "It's all right. Mah wife don' need any watchin'. She'll wuk jes' as hard as if I was dah."

Room for Doubt

He: "Is my face dirty, or is it my imagination?"

She: "Your face is clean; I don't know about your imagination."

Spicy Saying

No man likes to be beaten to the punch—especially if it's spiked.

ONE REQUEST

A Swedish farmer who wanted to make his permanent home in this country appeared for his naturalization papers.

"Are you satisfied with the general conditions of this country?" he was asked.

"Yah, sure," answered the hopeful one.

"And does this government of ours suit you?"

"Well, yah, mostly," stammered the man, "only I lak see more rain."

Eagles Lose Last Game of Season To Floydada Whirlwinds Friday

Coach Floyd Murry's Eagles dropped their second conference game and the final tilt of the season to Floydada Friday night in Buffalo Stadium. An estimated 1,500 fans saw the Whirlwinds trample the Eagles 32-0 to become district champs.

Early in the first period of play it looked as if the Eagles would be the first to score as Don McDonald intercepted a Floydada pass and started the Eagles on a drive and punt that carried them to the Whirlwind 20 yard line. However, they bogged down and lost the ball. Adrian Helms of Floydada took the ball on his own 20 yard stripe and raced 80 yards for the first TD.

During the first period of play Floydada made two touchdowns but failed to convert their extra points. It was Connie Bearden, 150-pound back, who made the second score for the Whirlwinds. The Whirlwinds racked up two more TDs and one extra point in the second quarter and two touchdowns in the final quarter.

The playing of the game was not as one-sided as the score might lead you to believe. During the first quarter R. A. Burgess broke loose for a 21-yard gain for the Eagles. During the second quarter there were some excellent plays made by Tommy Myers, Don Beck and Charles Boling.

In the third period of play the Eagles held the Whirlwinds scoreless. Lynn Williams and Don Beck figured prominently in the ground gaining department of this quarter. In three plays they moved the ball 34 yards with Beck picking up 22 of the total. John Miller, Tommy Middleton, Dan Gaylor, Arlen Ruthart, Bob Hood, and Joe Britt also did some good work.

The other members of the Eagle line-up for the year were Richard Pruett, Jerry Downing, Leroy Burrow, Doyle Bourn, Leroy Dickerson, Billy McBroom, Guy Hamblen, Allen Downing, A. C. Wimberly, Ted Lowe, Kenneth Berry, Harold Root, Larry Porter, Dick Dawdy, Charles Morris, and Jimmie Joyner.

Buffalo Stadium had a large number of Floydada visitors Friday night. They were welcomed by Mayor A. L. Walsh just before the opening kick-off of the game. Then the pep squad gave the visitors a loud yell of welcome. During the half-time period there was the spectacular twirling of a baton with a flaming torch at each end. The twirler was Miss Annette Pond.

who has performed at many of this season's games for the Eagles.

The game ended a rather hectic season for Coach Murry and his assistant, Eddie Conner. They won four games, dropped five and tied one. Out of 28 players this year there were 17 seniors which leaves an 11 man nucleus around which to build a 1953 football team.

Super Buffaloes Sent To Museum

When the West Texas State College Buffaloes come up with a championship football team again, they might be renamed for a recent acquisition of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum. They could be called "Super Buffaloes."

Two skulls and several leg and foot bones of large ice-age "super bison" have been sent to the museum by the Frick Laboratory of the American Museum of Natural History in New York, according to Boone McClure, director. The remains were sent by Dr. Charles H. Falkenbach of the Frick Laboratory, who was "favorably impressed" by the paleontological materials and exhibits at the museum when he visited here in October.

Jack T. Hughes, curator of paleontology, described the large bison, in technical jargon as "Bison super bison crassicornis." The bison, or "buffalo" which once inhabited the Plains in vast numbers, is a modern bison, or, in paleontological terms, "Bison bison."

The super bison remains, which were excavated from Fairbanks Creek in Alaska, were in excellent condition, Hughes said. One of the skulls still contains horn substance, which was preserved in the cold soil in which they were found.

Frenchmen Visit WT Campus Tues.

Miss Agnes Charlton, associate professor of modern languages at WT, was hostess Tuesday to a group of French air cadets stationed at the Amarillo Air Force Base. It was an exchange of formalities by the Frenchmen and the WT students who are studying the French language.

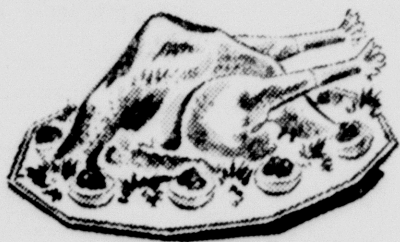

It all started when Thomas Kirkcommell, professor of English at the Amarillo base, invited Miss Charlton and her French students to gather in his home each Sunday to better acquaint the two groups of students.

Tuesday Miss Charlton conducted the seven cadets about the campus throughout the day to let them get a better idea of college life at WT.

The seven cadets included Andre Coupri, Barnard Chollez, Gerard Chanel, Michel Cabrera, Max Clavel, Jean Bellego and Gerard Cabrit. One of the men, Max Clavel, is an accomplished pianist and entertained in the lounge of Randall Hall Tuesday evening.

AUSTIN BOWES

Two linemen have been chosen athletes of the week for their performances in the WT-Trinity game in San Antonio last week. Selections were made on the basis of opinion expressed by pressmen who were at the game.

Austin Bowes was selected for his outstanding offensive work in clearing passageways through which Buff backs could slip into the secondary of the Trinity defense. At times when no one else could, Austin cleared his hole.

Paul Boswell is cited for his defensive action. More than once he stepped through the line to grab a Tiger or to catch him on the end sweeps which Trinity was able to use to such good advantage.

Boswell is a junior from Pampa who plays at the tackle slot. Bowes is a starting center from Kress.

Clerks Requested Not Hog Parking Space on Square

A few business men and several clerks in business houses have become careless about hogging parking space around the public square at the expense of customers of the business firms.

A business man was observed the other day driving his car in front of other business houses and leaving it for several hours.

Clerks in several stores have the habit of driving to town, parking their cars in front of other firms than the ones in which they are employed.

There is plenty of parking space a little distance from all business firms, not in front of stores. Of instances, there is double parking space around the entire square. Parallel parking is demanded only on Fourth Avenue. There is hardly a moment when space cannot be secured for parking around the court house.

Those who shop in Amarillo, or any other large town, are required to walk several blocks in order to find parking space.

The Canyon News recently called attention to the bad practice of parking in Canyon, with excellent results. Let's just be a little more careful about parking.

Authorities Ask Cooperation Of Mailing Public

The holiday season is on us and one of the time-consuming chores to be done is that of mailing packages and cards. A lot of the unpleasantness can be taken out of the mailing chores by observing some of the instructions on the postal bulletin board in the post office.

By observing these instructions, the public is also assured of more efficient and prompt delivery of cards and packages. Postmaster Guy Harp has special labels for cards and if they are used they will greatly speed up the process of getting the cards to the desired location. The cards should be tied in a package. Those for local distribution in one and those going out of town in another.

An appropriate label should be on each package of cards and this package should be handed through the window to the postal authorities or simply dropped into the package chute if the post office is closed.

Recently Mr. Harp said, "The people of the community are to be complimented for their response to last year's Christmas mailing instructions." He hopes to give the public the same type of efficiency this year and can if he has the cooperation of the public.

Mother of Mrs. W. B. Colwell Buried Wayside Thursday

Final rites for Mrs. Viola Shipman, wife of T. H. Shipman of Happy, were conducted at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the Wayside church at Wayside. Officiating were Rev. A. L. Shaw and Rev. Jack Jeter. Nephews served as pallbearers. Interment in the Wayside cemetery was under direction of Blackburn Shaw Funeral Home.

The body lay in state at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Ira Schrib of Wayside, until one hour before services.

Mrs. Shipman, 69 years old, died at 11:45 p.m. Tuesday in Neblett Hospital. She had lived in the Panhandle for a quarter of a century.

She was born in Williamson County, Sept. 8, 1883.

Also surviving are another daughter, Mrs. W. B. Colwell, of Canyon; a son, H. H. Shipman, of Happy, and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Bell Moore of Happy.

Other survivors are six brothers, W. R. Moore of Wayside, Jessie Moore of Vega, Buren Moore of Seymour, Clyde Moore of Seattle, Wash., Glenn Moore of Friona, and Herman Moore of Oklahoma; and a sister, Mrs. Battie Coleman of Seymour.

PRISON POPULATION

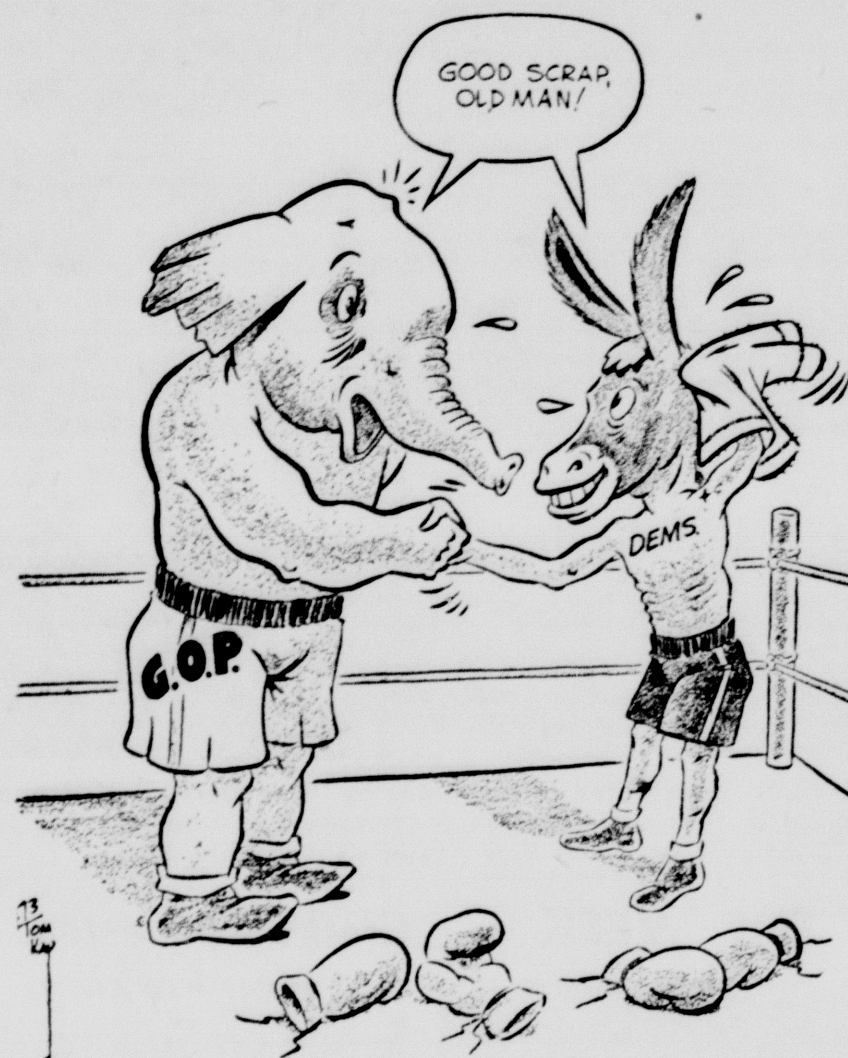

There were 164,896 prisoners in Federal and State institutions at the end of 1951, according to the Federal Bureau of Prisons. Of the total, 17,395 were in Federal Prisons and 147,501 in state prisons. Of these, 6,070, or about 3.7 per cent, were women.

Electric Failure Due Broken Fuse

Electrical service was interrupted in Canyon for approximately eight minutes Friday morning when a glass barreled liquid type fuse was broken at the local substation. Truett Hull, manager of the Southwestern Public Service Company, said the glass barrel of the fuse was filled with carbon tetrachloride as a safety measure against flame.

Hull said a flying pebble or a stray shot from a gun could cause such an interruption. Workmen were prompt in locating the trouble and equally efficient in correcting it. The installation of the new fuse, Hull explained, was done, re-routing the current long enough to remove the parts of the old fuse and replacing it with the new one.

Mrs. Jeannette Robbins left Wednesday for Salem, Oregon, to visit in the home of her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Walker. Enroute she will visit with another daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Hathaway, in Albuquerque, N. M., and with friends and relatives in California. She expects to be away about three months.

Thanksgiving — November 27, 1952

When, about 300 years ago, the pilgrim fathers sat down to the first Thanksgiving dinner, there is little doubt that they had any idea of what the observance would be in 1952. Those people who sat down to the heavily laden table for the first Thanksgiving saw the beginnings of what we know today as the United States and what it stands for.

These people had taken the bull by the horns and come to an unpopulated, by white men, country, of which they knew nothing, in an effort to give their children a chance for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, where God could be worshipped in the way which to them seemed best and most fitting.

These people had been persecuted and denied these things, and were of the opinion that they should do something about it.

Unknown to them and with the help of Divine guidance, they brought to the new world democratic ideals.

When they felt that they had succeeded in their mission, the first thought was to give thanks unto the Lord for what they had gained.

Since that time the people of America have gained so very much more in so many different ways than the few who first held Thanksgiving as a group.

Today the group which should offer thanks is millions strong. It is "one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Let us give thanks unto the Lord, this Thanksgiving day, November 27, 1952, for all those things that are ours through the grace of God.

Neva Jane Langley, Miss America of 1953: "I attribute my health, beauty and happiness to a genuine interest in people, proper diet, rest and grooming."

David Marion Delo, college president: "Freedom in a democracy depends upon an ability to practice voluntarily both individual and collective discipline for the common good."

C. M. White, steel company official: "Young people of a welfare state will be carefully bred 'securocrats'."

The Most Rev. Geoffrey F. Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury: "Our Western civilization today is more threatened from within than from without."

Guest Speaker at Annual Banquet

WALTER ROGERS

Congressman Walter Rogers of the 18th Congressional District is to be the guest speaker at the annual Canyon Chamber of Commerce banquet this year. The banquet is scheduled for the evening of December 11, in the West Texas State College cafeteria at 7:30 p. m.

Glenn Waggoner, chamber of commerce manager, said there would be entertainment as well as a delicious meal. He added that it was not possible to make the menu public at this early date but the public could be assured of an exceedingly tempting plate.

The price of the plate was another thing unknown at the time the speaker was announced. As soon as all the details are worked out and settled the tickets will be on sale and can be obtained at the chamber of commerce office.

John D. Hickerson, Assistant Secretary of State: "The best chance for an armistice in Korea is for the United Nations to show that it is united and resolute."

Adlai Stevenson, Governor of Illinois: "That which unites Americans as citizens is far greater than that which divides us as political partisans."

Dr. Elton D. Trueblood, Quaker philosopher: "Ministers today... convert the converted. They minister to those already safely in the fold."

"K" SERVICE STATION

Just Between You, Me and . . . the Gatepost

(By Lawrence Hunnicutt)

Although the local electrical interruption last week was less than ten minutes it did create some excitement. Bill Sternberg said he was doing some sawing with an electric saw. Of course that came to a halt. Jack Jennings and Bill Sternberg both paid a visit to Truett Hull at the Southwestern Public Service Company office to see how serious the trouble was.

The main topic of discussion last week was about the Thanksgiving holiday. While most of the local people planned to have visitors for the holidays there were others who were going out of town for the occasion. The hilarious group were the students of West Texas State College who would have enough time to visit their homes. Although there wasn't much said about it, you could feel the undercurrent of Christmas holiday spirit in the air, too.

Glenn Waggoner, Chamber of Commerce manager, was happy over some events that took place last week. He received word that Congressman Walter Rogers would be the speaker for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet. He was also happy about the completion of plans by the chamber to give prizes for the best decorated homes in Canyon this year.

One of the things that nobody was happy about was the lack of rain. The prolonged dry spell has already cast a gloomy pall over any prospect for a wheat crop next year. County Agent John Brazzil said the Panhandle of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and part of Colorado were suffering now from drought. He added that irrigated wheat looked pretty good but there was very little of it in comparison to non-irrigated fields.

Cecil Massey, former Chamber of Commerce manager, visited about the square a few minutes Friday on his way to the football game in Wheeler.

This week our visiting student comes all the way from Puerto Rico. She is Zaidee N. Torregrosa who is 5' 2" tall and weighs 114 pounds. Zaidee, students call her Sadie for short, has black hair and brown eyes. She combines a sparkling personality with a deep desire for education. This is her second year at West Texas State College and she is a sophomore.

Sadie is an English major and a speech minor and upon graduation from WTSC she plans to teach in Puerto Rico. She also plans to take her master's degree at the University of Puerto Rico. Before coming to WTSC, Miss Torregrosa attended St. Anthony's Academy, a private school in Guayama, Puerto Rico, her home town.

Last year Miss Torregrosa was a member of the A Cappella Choir of West Texas State. This year she is an active member of the Buffalo Masquers. While attending college here she is making her home at Cousins Hall. Although she enjoys her work here and has made many friends, she appears a little happier when she talks of returning to Puerto Rico.

While we're on the subject of the speech department, we might as well correct an error that has slipped in a time or two. The error was a slip that stated W. A. Moore was acting head of the department. Actually, Dr. Crannell Tolliver is head of the department and Mr. Moore is assistant professor of speech. We offer sincere apologies and hope the red face did not go beyond the writer.

There's an old joke about an army pilot who told of his experience on his first flight. He said he flew blind for the first thousand miles and then opened his eyes. Our procedure is a little different for the column. We keep our eyes open until we get to Chirps of Wisdom, then close them, so follow suit and grab your dark glasses, here's that department again.

A little boy asked his dad to explain the difference between capital and labor. The wise father answered, "When you loan money that's capital but when you try to get it back, that's labor."

They laughed when I spoke to the waiter in French, they didn't know that I told him to give the check to my friend.

Passing thought: Enthusiasm is the electric current which keeps the engine of life going at top speed.

Old Charlie Will Caper Thru Pregame Basketball Activities

Anybody who happened to be a buffalo last year (or was supporting during his last taxable year one or more buffaloes closely dependent upon him) is going to have a pretty hollow feeling in the pit of his stomach when he gets a load of the pre-game ceremonies for basketball season designed exclusively by Vaughn Vandergriff.

Vandergriff has a series of shows slated, the first on December 6th, and they include practically everything but dancing aborigines with Grandpa's shinbone stuck through their coiffure.

Mascot

We are even going to have a mascot. His name is Charlie II, and he has an important part to play in the forthcoming shows. Of course, since we can't afford to have a REAL buffalo (or Bison bison, paleontologically speaking) clomping around on the hardwood of the new field house, this mascot will have to be somebody who just kinda looks like a buffalo.

I hold no buff for the briefalo—beg pardon, I should have said, "I hold no brief for the buffalo," but outside of a fatty deposit between the shoulder blades I am no more buffalo than you are.

Charlie II

I said our new mascot's name would be Charlie II. That's because the old Charlie, the real Charlie came to a tragic end years before our generation. It happened like this: Years ago there was a pen where Terrill Hall is now. In the pen was a Mamma buffalo, a Pappa buffalo, and a little baby buffalo. The Papa buffalo was named Charlie.

One day Charlie decided to leave home and go out on the town. He did, and, after he and the townspeople had chased each other around for awhile, old Charlie just upped and dropped dead from sheer exhaustion. No one seems to know just exactly what happened to Mamma and Junior after that, but then, you never could tell about these juniors.

The moral of that little story is this: If they happen to pick you to be Charlie II, remember not to go berserk and leave Mamma and

Students Depart For Mexico City

Mexico City is the ultimate destination of a group of 29 people who left West Texas State College Saturday morning at 4 o'clock to begin the first leg of a journey of the annual Spanish field trip.

The group took a chartered bus Saturday morning to travel the 620 miles to Laredo where they spent the first night. After the usual formality of going through customs, they took the Pan-American highway to Cuidad Valles and spent the second night there.

Then, Mexico City, where they will spend four nights and three days visiting the palaces, temples, and pyramids built long ago by those ancient, shadowy civilizations.

Making the trip this year are: Sheila Malone, Marilyn Gupton, Jim Wooten, Dorothy McCasland, Laverne Fowler, Mildred Bennett, Mrs. R. E. Townsend, Mrs. W. C. Kunze, Mrs. So Relle, Charles So Relle, Polly Caperton So Relle, Roberta and Edith Garrett, Patty Rutherford, Carrie Dowdy, Dorthula Walker, Dell Tookey.

And, Maude J. Gormley of Dallas, Mrs. R. E. Sherrill of Vernon, Lt. Leonard Etchart, Dick Bynum, Ida Jo Bynum, Mr. and Mrs. Musick, Vera B. Neely, Mrs. M. M. Rutherford, and, of course, Dr. Ples Harper and Miss Agnes Charlton of the Foreign Languages department.

This trip is offered every year to give students, especially Spanish students, the opportunity and benefit of entering a foreign country and see, in reality, what they have been studying.

Junior at home alone.

Cooperate

Vandergriff says we will have some really unusual pre-game shows, if the students will cooperate. Each show will honor some Panhandle town and the high school band of that town will be on hand to perform.

And so, kiddies, if you feel as if you would like to be Charlie II, the thing for you to do is go home and practice up on whatever it is that a buffalo practices up on, and turn out snorting and pawing, on December 6th for the pre-game basketball show.

Henry Wallace, former Vice-President: "My greatest mistake was in not denouncing the Communist take-over of Czechoslovakia in February of 1948."

Dollar Signs Replace Names In the Journal

NEW YORK—The Journal of Commerce is the most dehumanized newspaper in the country. This is by design and requires great effort. Human interest, for which every other newspaper strives, sneaks into the Journal only by accident. The publishers' maxim is: "News is what makes the dollar change hands."

The Journal, which observes its 125 anniversary this year, realized its most famous scoop early in World War I with a story of the torpedoing of a British freighter by a German sub in the Indian ocean. The Journal went into great detail.

Hessians and Sackings

More than 2,000 bales of burlap, it noted in the first paragraph, were lost. The shipment it reported, included 40-inch 10½-ounce goods as well as 40-inch, eight-ounce goods. There were "Hessians and sackings." The Journal had the names of the mills which made the burlap and the importers to whom the burlap was consigned. Not a single commercial detail was missing.

In the last paragraph, the Journal reported that this was the first German sub to strike in the Indian Ocean. In the last sentence, the Journal noted that 1,200 lives were lost.

"We would still handle the story the same way," said Dr. H. E. Luedicke, Executive Editor, who has a doctorate in economics. "After all, the burlap is what counts to us."

Covers More Fires

The Journal proudly claims that it covers more fires than any other paper and in doing so supplies all the details—street address, date, names, cause when available, and property damage. All details but one. The Journal never mentions any loss of life, no matter how great, in a fire.

"After all," an executive said, "we're only interested in providing this service for fire insurance companies, not the life insurance people."

Someone once said that nobody reads the Journal unless he has to. The Journal proudly agrees. It believes that the 34,000 daily subscribers of the paper, who pay $30 a year, read it because they have to, as businessmen.

About 209,000 persons read the competitive Wall Street Journal.

Indians in Peru Are Addicted to Cocaine

LIMA, Peru—In this country, four million Indians are succumbing to the influence of cocaine. They wear, attached to their waists, a coarse bag which contains a pound or more of erythroxylon coca. They also carry a small gourd containing cactus ash or limestone, which, mixed with coca leaves in the mouth, facilitates the release of the alkaloid cocaine during mastication.

They chew the leaf three times a day. The chewing is known as the "chachachada," and a complete "chachachada" lasts about 30 minutes.

Moderate doses temporarily augment bodily and mental power. Formerly it was believed that the Indians, driven further and further into the mountains by Spanish invaders, were only able to live at fabulous altitudes by means of this stimulant.

The coca habit keeps the Andean Indians at the mercy of the whites. The laborers in the coca plantations are virtually slaves, and the owners have a vested interest in their continued subjection. The state, moreover, draws a considerable revenue from the distribution of the drug.

The opponents of this traffic are stigmatized as agitators. Communists, enemies not only of the landowners and the ruling classes, but of the state as well.

Spectator's Throng To See Baby's Birth

NEW YORK—Little Mary Theresa Costello made her appearance in this world with the cheers of 100 spectators ringing in her ears.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Costello, and her husband, Daniel, were rushing in the family car to a hospital from their home in Long Island City when suddenly Mrs. Costello cried: "Stop the car!"

Mr. Costello did. Then he honked his horn furiously to attract attention, shouting, "help! my wife's having a baby! Get a doctor!"

By coincidence, the family physician, Dr. Vincent Panvini of Elmhurst drove by just then. He ran over and ordered the anxious pop-to-be to hop into a nearby diner and get hot water. A few seconds later Mr. Costello was back, with Gloria Halka, a waitress, carrying a container of boiling water.

By that time, an estimated 100 onlookers had gathered around the car. They maintained a dead silence while Dr. Panvini worked. Then, when Mary made her entrance into this world, they broke out into a spontaneous cheer.

Even the new papa stopped pacing up and down, and joined in.

If I read the signs right, Texas is going to do something soon about the water situation.

There is a shortage of water now, and it is getting more serious all the time.

Paul Weaver, Gulf Oil geophysicist, pointed up some aspects of the problem in a speech here the other day.

In part, he said, the shortage is brought about by the massing of people in big cities. City people use more water than country people. City people like their washing machines; they water their lawns and flowers; they use water in air-conditioning machines, and so on.

Further, the factories, generally located in or near cities, require huge amounts of water.

And while the demand for water is growing, the supply is diminishing all the time.

As the Houston Post observes in an editorial, Texans for the last century have been doing things that drain water from the land that drain water from the land into the sea: "cultivating the ground, clearing out water-retaining growth and building roads which serve as a drainage network. At the same time, with wells we have depleted the reduced quantity that finds its way below the surface."

Drouths during the last few years have brought public attention to the water problem. People in Dallas, San Angelo, and other cities can't get their cars washed or water their lawns—not from the public water supply.

But Weaver says that we would have been in a predicament, even had there been no recent drouths. What is the remedy?

Weaver gives it in three parts: store flood water, find more underground supplies, and re-use the water that is now running off in drains.

A water conference, sponsored by the University of Texas, drew a large number of experts on water.

Most of the speakers expressed the opinion that local solutions to the problem should be found, rather than depending on the federal government to build dams.

John D. McCall, Dallas attorney, said that local district-owned dams and reservoirs can be financially successful.

They would be paid for by the issuance and sale of bonds. The bonds could be retired with revenues from the sale of water. Several cities might combine forces in the water project, which would include a central purification plant and supply lines to the participating cities.

Arthur P. Duggan, Jr., Littlefield Texas underground supplies or attorney, told the conference that water can be made to last forever—but it will take proper support of conservation districts.

Governor Allan Shivers has appointed a statewide committee to study the situation and make recommendations. The governor's address to the opening session of the Legislature in January will doubtless include his thinking about water and what laws should be passed to help bring about a happier supply situation in the state.

Some business experts will tell you that the water problem from their viewpoint is the most serious one confronting Texas today.

These people say that the industrialization of Texas is going to stay right where it is unless

On this Thanksgiving Day we are grateful for the privilege of being Americans.

Our great nation has been blessed throughout the years, and today we are enjoying Peace, Health and Prosperity.

May all of the homes in Randall county enjoy a pleasant Thanksgiving, and may all of our citizens look forward to a Merry Christmas.

WARREN'S

Thanksgiving

Thursday is Thanksgiving Day, and it is fitting that we stop and think together, and bow our heads in unison to the Almighty for our heritage as a progressive people and an indivisible nation.

In 1620, when the Pilgrims settled on the jagged, unconquered shores of America, many of them died because of the intense cold of the region and the lack of proper food. In the fall of 1621, after an abundant crop had been harvested, the people felt a need for a Thanksgiving Day. However, it was not until George Washington, president of the newly organized United States of America, proclaimed it a national holiday, that it came to be celebrated by all people.

The day itself is a celebration of the end of harvest — a scant harvest or a plentiful harvest. Through the many years the celebration has come to mean much more to every American.

Our prayers must commemorate those valiant leaders, who during the period when our country was struggling to take its place in the roster of free democratic nations, were creating America's government, trade, and commerce.

They must include those brave and tough scouts who led the wagon trains to make homes in the unsettled West. Our prayers must include remembrances of gallant soldiers who gave their lives that this nation might stand. Our prayers must hold remembrances of those erudite statesmen, for without their concept and ideas adapted to the high governmental forms, their military geniusness, and places in the public offices, our nation might not be here today.

We must thank Him for the creation of our United States flag, the colors, and what the flag symbolizes to every red-blooded American.

Yes, it is essential that we, members of Canyon's youth, the children of free America, thank Him that we want to be thankful, and that we have this privilege of bowing our heads to an everlasting king.

Your Responsibility

American freedom of the press is vital to American democracy. If our nation was ever to lose its liberty to write and to print, it would be a disaster worse than death. It is our responsibility to support and ever uphold this privilege.

A man once said, "Readers have a part to play in helping our newspapers fulfill the responsibility that is theirs. They should realize the significance of freedom which permits all sides of a question to be discussed."

First, they might develop an understanding of what freedom of the press means. Without freedom of the press, our country would be ruled by a dictatorship.

Second, readers have an obligation to think through important questions of state and union. They should be willing to read other points of view in conflict with what they believe.

Third, readers can support and commend editors and publishers with discussions, letters to the editor, and interviews.

Finally, all of us in America may develop an appreciation of our heritage of freedom and do those things which will make us worthy of it. Insist on the right of every paper—every person to be heard.

Freedom of the press means not only the right to print but freedom to read—freedom to get both sides of a story. Forever uphold freedom of the press. It is your responsibility.

School casualties of the week as reported by radio station "WRECK-UM" are: Don Beck fell down the stairs one day last week, striking himself on the bottom step.

A savage dog attacked Barry Clark and bit him several times on the public square.

Gilbert Irlbeck, while hobbling one of his cows, was kicked just south of the corn crib.

Say, ole' Cal has been hearing a lot of gossip about a new secret weapon being used on the football field. He could not find out anything about it except that it takes a lot of oil and anti-freeze. John Miller said that it was so cold the night of the Hereford game that they could not use it. It seems as though they changed the oil, added a little super gas, and some more anti-freeze. Then they tried it out in scrimmage the other night and it proved to be terrible powerful. "Much too powerful," everyone says. Now they have decided to put in cold storage and save it for basketball season.

Dorothy Cleavinger, president, Nancy Bolton, vice-president, and Wanette Green, reporter, did the honor of serving.

Attending the tea were approximately 24 persons on the visiting committees and a large number of teachers.

Craftsmanship Is Stressed in Shop

Good craftsmanship is what Sidney P. Burgess is stressing most in his Shop I and II classes this semester in Canyon High School. There are 55 boys in both shop classes who are trying to master good craftsmanship.

The boys in both shops are making tool cabinets and storage bins for the workshop. Eight or ten different kinds of hard woods are being used; two of the most outstanding are cherry and mahogany.

Shop I boys are working with hand tools. Some of the projects are end tables, book cases, and magazine racks. The boys in Shop II are doing more advanced work, as they are working with machines. Desks and bedroom suites are the projects in this course.

Later in the year the boys are planning to give an exhibit.

IT'S A DATE

"It's a Date" is really coming along with practice of the first and second acts. The Juniors are working every night of the week. It is going to be a good comedy. The Juniors are very enthusiastic about it and they urge everyone to come see it December 4 and 5. So do not forget—"It's a Date."

Head Coach

COACH FLOYD MURRY

A tricky signal caller? A good passer with plenty of speed and punting ability? Why our own Coach Floyd Murry, of course, a former halfback on Al Baggett's 1939 West Texas State College Buffaloes.

Mr. Murry has also made quite a name for himself as a coach in his native West Texas. This is Murry's third year as head coach since his return to Canyon after holding positions in the public school systems of Floydada, Stinnett, and Perryton.

Hunting and fishing comprise Coach Murry's first forms of relaxation, but his duties do not allow him much time for these pastimes.

Last year Coach Murry's Eagles won the honor of being co-district champions. The 1952 squad, with the entire student body and faculty, take this opportunity to show their appreciation to Coach Murry for his hard work with our purple and white clad Eagles.

Mr. and Mrs. Murry have four children. Mr. Murry also teaches two classes of biology each day.

Coach Lynn Hulsey and all his boys should be commended for their hard work this season.

Linemen on the B squad this year were: ends, Charles Joyner, Eugene Boston, LeVon Jackson, and Richard Busted; guards, Norman Tueck, Ken Kuykendall, Hubert Green; tackles, Al Meyers, J. T. Grimes, Arnett Florence, Bill Harrison, Frank Kimbrough, and Perry Slagle; centers, Foster Parker, and Lonnie Davis.

The backs were: left halfback, Larry Stroup and Richard Dodson; right halfbacks, David Brandon, Jimmy Adams, and Billy Stephens; fullbacks, Jamie Airhart; and quarterback, Jimmy Golden.

New Drapes Hang In School Library

Grandma Moses' original textile design, "Childhood Home," was chosen for the new draw drapes now hanging in the Grade School library.

These drapes serve a double purpose. They are decorative and also beneficial to the students in another way. They are especially lined so that when they are drawn, it darkens the room and makes it possible to show films. Such a space has been needed in the grade school for years.

The scene is that of a farm with beautiful shades of browns, greens and reds, with a calm blue lake which blends in nicely with the blue walls of the library.

"We wish to express our appreciation to Mrs. Newton Crain, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Wilford Taylor, Jr., and Mrs. Otis Parker who donated their time in making the drapes for us. They did a wonderful job," stated Mrs. Fronabarger, principal of the school.

Evaluation Committee Report Given Thursday; Find School Exceptional

"Education belongs to all of us—teachers, students, and parents," said R. A. Selby in conclusion of the reports given by the visiting evaluation committee Thursday afternoon in the high school auditorium.

A well-planned schedule was given for the benefit and entertainment of this committee. Tuesday afternoon the administrators of all Panhandle schools represented met in the Visual Aid department at West Texas State College for the purpose of discussing teacher placement and qualifications.

The teacher education sub-committee met in the department the same afternoon, and in the evening the school board entertained with a dinner in the high school homemaking department.

Tuesday, a tea in the Canyon Grade School Library, sponsored by the FTA; a luncheon Wednesday, in the homemaking department by the FHA; and a coffee Thursday evening, sponsored by the P.T.A., following the committee reports, were the social events held in honor of the visiting committee.

R. A. Selby of the Amarillo Public Schools, was coordinator for the entire group which consisted of three committees.

1. School-wide evaluation committees: School plant, equipment, and library services; building is in good repair, Canyon Grade School classrooms are attractive, adequate supplies are available, furniture is in good condition; improvement suggestions: For high school and Canyon Grade School, a more adequate health and hygiene study should be offered, redecoration in certain rooms, science and homemaking departments need more storage and larger classroom areas, grade school playgrounds need attention, and more facilities for exceptional children are needed.

In the WT Elementary school, the fountains, lights, rest rooms, walls, rooms, and lockers need attention. No fire extinguishers are available in case of fire.

The libraries are adequately maintained but the librarian needs one off period. The salaries are the same as classroom teachers, and the book collection is exceptional, except more vocational research material should be available.

J. W. Dillard, Borger, was chairman of this committee, with Mrs. Grace Scott, Tulia, and Ray Vineyard, Dumas.

School staff and administration, transportation, and cafeterias: The average experience of all teachers is 17 years, all teachers are teaching in the fields they were trained in, or in allied fields, student-teacher relationship is commendable, of the instructors teaching, 29 have their master degrees, and 26 have bachelor degrees. A visiting teacher and part-time nurse is recommended. The school board obtains some new busses every year, and all busses are in good condition. Meals at the cafeteria are well planned, balanced, and wholesome.

George Graham, Hereford, was chairman of this committee with J. W. Adams, Tulia.

2. Elementary school committee: The children: An exceptional high attendance average of 94 to 97 per cent, was found, the rooms are equally divided with 24 to 32 in each room, and students are placed in their proper age brackets. Recommendations were, more welfare and exceptional children facilities, part time nurse, and better sanitation.

Program of Studies: Qualifications are adequate, but recommendations are qualified art teacher, full-time librarian, tape recorder, storage, for Canyon Grade School.

Mrs. John Shewbert, Dalhart, was coordinator for the elementary evaluation. With her on these committees were Mildred McGhee, Phillips, Earlene Walton, Hereford, Mrs. Alta Lane, Pampa, Della Stagline, Hereford, Wilton Lillard, Phillips, Mrs. Rosa Spann, Borger, Mrs. June Harvey, Shamrock, and Mrs. J. W. Clonts, Tulia.

3. High School Committees: Guidance and Student Activity: students behave in the halls, during all hours, a happy, friendly atmosphere exists among students, teachers and administrators, all students take part in some extra-curricular activities, the publications, The Eagle's Tale, Soaring Wings, the Library News, and Student Handbook, provide good publicity. Recommendations are a dramatics club, more students on publication staff, and more equipment in the physical education department.

Sam Bryan, Tulia, was chairman of this committee, and others on the committee were George Graham, Hereford, and Ray Vineyard, Dumas.

Program of Studies: staff and curriculum are ahead of the build-and-equipment. Research into previous records of CHS graduates attending college indicate that the graduates know these things, journalism, more students on the staff, and more modern furniture; foreign language, should be taken in consecutive years; vocational agriculture, additional space; business, a second year course of shorthand, typing, and bookkeeping could be offered.

Homemaking, more space, and a course for both girls and boys; math, a course in solid geometry, and trigonometry should be offered; science, more equipment; art, more space; physical education, gym for intramural activity, should be required, and storage space; industrial arts, woodwork

Canyon Eaglettes Prey to Cowgirls

With a three minute overtime, the Canyon Eaglettes fell into the hands of the Happy Cowgirls Tuesday night, November 18, at Happy. The score was 35-38.

At the end of the game the score stood at 34-35 with a technical foul to be taken care of. Happy missed their shot, but Canyon made theirs to tie up the score. Martha McBroom made this point. But in the end, the Cowgirls came out on top 38-35.

The Eaglettes' B team also lost to the Happy Cowgirls, 14-32. This is the third game the Eaglettes have lost.

PEP ASSEMBLY

A rip roarin' pep assembly was held Friday in the auditorium with the cheerleaders in charge. Numerous yells were given and the school and fight songs were sung with a boisterous YEA! following to close the session.

Several short speeches were given by members of the A team.

CHS Band Closes Marching Season

A series of squares, a novelty dance, and a special fire-baton act were the highlights of the CHS band show Friday at the Eagles-Whirlwind battle in Buffalo Stadium.

Three connected squares were arranged with a twirler performing in each square as the band played the trio of the march, "Our Director."

Moving back into marching formation the band stepped off with a novelty dance while playing "Botch-a-Me."

Annette Pond entertained with her fire-baton routine in the center of one large square while the band provided an appropriate march as a background.

Applause echoed from the audience as the band left the field playing "Symbol of Honor."

Four Local Men Attend Revival Of Billy Graham

Four local men attended the "Crusade Campaign" of Evangelist Billy Graham in Albuquerque, N. M., Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 22 and 23. The four were E. T. Cummings, Dennis Lyle, George Blackwell, and R. A. Smith.

Dennis Lyle, Educational Director of the First Baptist Church, took part in the 600 voice choir which was broadcast on a world-wide radio network. The song leader for the seven member Billy Graham team is Cliff Barrows.

Blackwell said the services of the evangelist usually lasted about two hours with the actual sermon being about 45 minutes long. He also mentioned the special building that the service was being conducted in. The dirt floor building was said to cover almost an entire city block and was built by the people of Albuquerque who made up the $78,000 needed for the construction. The seating capacity of the building was said to be 8,000 and during the service Saturday night and Sunday, all seats were reported as being filled and a large number of people standing. This is the fourth and final week of the revival. During the first three weeks there was a reported 2,000 people responding for conversion.

Local Red Cross Makes Up Gifts For Servicemen

The Canyon Red Cross chapter mailed 24 packages to servicemen Saturday, said Mrs. Bessie Melton, local Red Cross worker, Monday afternoon. Mrs. Melton said the high seas Christmas packages each contained six items.

Among the items mailed were stationery with stamps, pen, cigarettes, razor blades, deck of cards, and a toothbrush. There was also a greeting card in the package that extended greetings to the person who received the package. It was a special greeting from the Canyon chapter of the Red Cross.

The first in a series of shipments of United States planes scheduled for the Chinese Nationalist forces arrived in Formosa.

MILITARY BUDGET

Next year's military budget will not exceed $40,000,000,000, a cut of $5,000,000,000 from the amount appropriated for this year and $10,000,000,000 from what had been requested, according to Pentagon sources. There would be no reduction in Army, Navy, or Air Force programs, however.

RUSSIAN PLANE

The American Aviation Magazine reports that Russia is flying experimental rocket fighter planes at speeds up to 1,700 miles an hour and altitudes upward of 100,000 feet. Even more powerful rocket planes, under Russian top-priority development, may be able to fly 2,500 miles an hour at altitudes of 200,000 feet, the magazine predicted.

Report Given on Local Artificial Animal Breeding

November marks the first anniversary of the Randall County Artificial Breeding Association. This association of local dairymen aims to improve dairy herd replacements. The young association has seen both good and bad times, and some of its members are stronger believers in its good work than they were a year ago.

In the field of dairying and in animal breeding, insemination is not new. The process was known many hundred years ago; yet the history of the work as it is known today covers a few years, especially in Texas.

The process was perfected so small dairymen could secure the use of outstanding herd sires without prohibitive investments. The process of proving the capabilities of bulls to increase production of their offsprings is slow and expensive. Small dairymen usually never can own proven sires. By belonging to artificial breeding associations the few outstanding bulls in the country can be used by any Randall County dairyman at reasonable prices.

The semen used in the Randall County breeding work is produced by bull studs at Texas Technological College at Lubbock. From this semen all dairy cattle on the Texas farm are artificially bred. The semen all dairy cattle on the Tech college also supplies outlying associations like the Randall County Association.

Semen at Tech is collected and prepared three times each week. Each bull is used only one time each week. The semen is collected, prepared, and refrigerated under careful supervision of trained technicians. When handled this way the semen can be increased by dilution thirty or forty, or even more times, without impairing its effectiveness. The semen is packed then in special shipping cartons and sent to inseminators by bus.

The Randall County inseminator, Dr. J. L. Markham, receives the semen about noon on the day it is shipped. He checks the sperm for viability under a powerful microscope. He then waits for dairymen to call for his service. The semen received one day will remain viable for several days. It is necessary to keep the semen no more than three days at any one time before fresh supply is received.

At the present time semen from Jersey and Holstein bulls is received. The bulls are of very high quality and have several generations of ancestors on each side that have made outstanding production records.

Last year there were 17 dairymen with 530 dairy cows belonging to the association. These dairymen live in both Randall and Deaf Smith counties. An inseminator at Hereford does the work near there. The dairymen joined the association by paying membership dues of $10 per year. They pay the association $6.50 for each cow bred. The inseminator will make three trips if necessary for the initial fee. If a fourth trip is required, another $6.50 payment is made. From this breeding fee, the inseminator is paid, postage, printing, and shipping charges are paid, and $2.00 for every cow bred is sent to Tech for the semen.

Breeding work is also done for non-members for $7.50 per animal. Since the association has been in operation, 256 cows in Randall County have been bred. A few number have been bred in Deaf Smith County. In Texas, so far in 1952, there have been 14,940 cows bred up to November 1. Accurate records show that an average of 62% of the cows will conceive on the first service. Then on the repeat services one half will then be settled on the next service. The Randall County inseminator has been running just about this way.

According to dairymen at the A & M College and at experiment stations over Texas, artificial insemination is more efficient than natural breeding. Many dairymen are reluctant to believe these figures, since records on natural service are seldom kept.

In summing up the work here, a few definite advantages are seen: The primary one is, of course, that bulls valued in the thousands of dollars cannot be bought by small dairymen. Through A. B. A., they can have the service of outstanding bulls for no more than what a scrub bull would cost to keep.

Accurate breeding and calving records are kept, probably for the first time, by many dairymen.

The danger of keeping bulls around the farm is eliminated when this service is used.

One of the big drawbacks to the program is communication. The dairymen must contact the inseminator, and many dairymen have no telephone. Rural telephone expansion will help the A. B. A. very much.

Most Randall County dairymen raise their own herd replacements. Calves from grade cows and good bulls will bring up most herd production averages. Herds of registered cattle can be made even more valuable. Already, calves are being dropped from cows bred artificially. In a few short years these calves will be cows. The twice-a-month milk check is a very reliable and steady one for the dairymen. The whole county benefits.

Dairy states in the mid-west and east are breeding as high as 25% of their dairy cows artificially. Texas breeds less than 2 per cent. Northern milk can be shipped a thousand miles and compete with Texas produced milk. They have methods that we need to use.

Neil Downing is president of the Randall County Association, and Clark Jarnagin is secretary. The association has a full set of directors elected each year. These Randall County dairymen have had cows bred artificially this year: Barrett and Ziegler, Ed Bourn, Albert Brown, E. H. Brinkman, Neil Downing, W. T. Davis, Eddie Evers, Norman Glenn, Grady Hazlewood, E. H. Humphries, A. B. Haynes, Ernest Hollenstein, J. W. Hood, Clark Jarnagin, L. S. Johnston, Alvin Kuhlman, James Lair, J. A. LaGrand, V. K. McCaskill, Tom Middleton, Arthur Miller, J. C. Ogle, C. T. Retherford, and L. J. Vogel.

V. F. W. Conducts Turkey Shoot

All of the excitement of a live-turkey shoot was enjoyed by a large number of men and a few women at the V. F. W. Grounds Sunday afternoon. Luke Miller, commander of the local post, said the turkey shoot would be carried on every Sunday afternoon until Christmas.

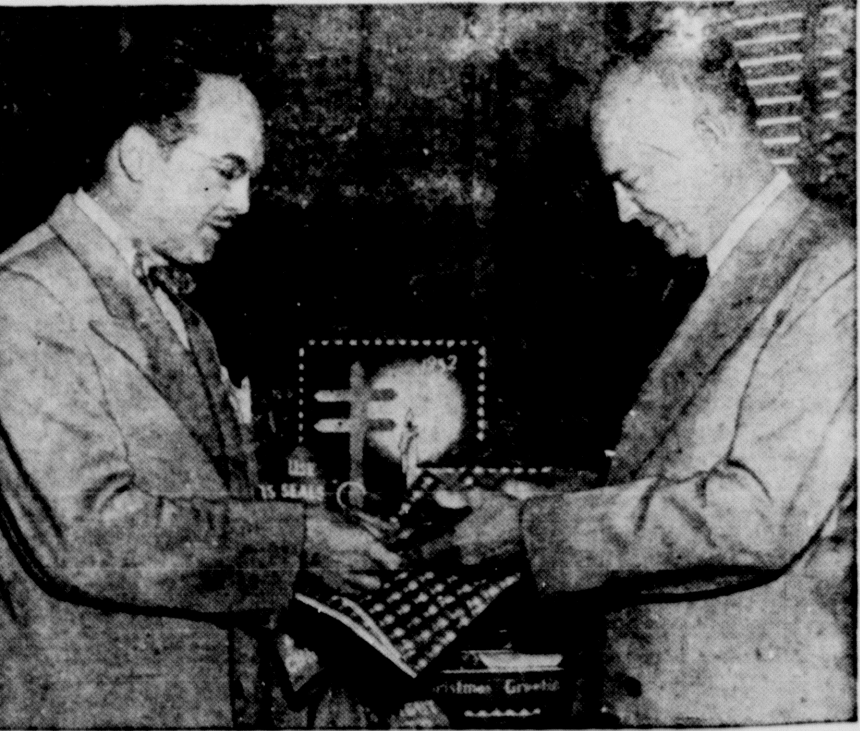

Those people who have been enjoying the trap shooting activities at the V. F. W. grounds can still do so, Miller said. He said this activity would be continued for those who desired to bring their shotgun along and do some trap shooting.

The club wanted more turkeys than they were able to get for the live shooting Sunday. They only had two turkeys and both of them were killed by the same man. He was an Odessa truck driver whose truck was broken down and being repaired here.

Miller said they would have more turkeys next Sunday and those who wanted to try their luck at getting fresh game like the pioneers got it should be at the V. F. W. ground about 2:30 p. m.

Carr - Standley Nuptial Vows Read in Friona Saturday

MRS. DONALD EDWARD STANDLEY

Nuptials for Miss Alice Ruth Carr and Donald Edward Standley were held Saturday evening at the First Baptist Church in Friona with Rev. Thurman L. Pond officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Carr of Friona and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Standley of Canyon.

At the ceremony Don Lewis sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because" accompanied at the piano by Miss Deniese Magness who played the traditional wedding music. Following the reading of the rites, the Friona High School Chorus sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Helen Benita Carr, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Leta Dene Springer of Hereford, Miss Sybil Ann Gillis of Canyon, Mrs. Fred M. Standley, Jr., of Clovis, N. M., and Miss Jo Parker of Happy.

The maid of honor wore a ballerina length taupe satin dress with ballero. The bridesmaids wore gold and silver gowns with slippers to match and carried colonial nose-gays of gold and bronze poms tied with variegated satin ribbons.

Fred M. Standley, Jr., served as best man for his brother. Grooms-men included James Lair, Bob Black, and Vaughn Vandergriff, all of Canyon, and Carroll Doshier of Amarillo.

Candle lighters were cousins of the bride, H. V. Williams, Jr., of Post, and A. G. Fox of Lubbock.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown designed of French Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over white satin. The molded bodice was designed with a high neckline and yoke of nylon tulle with long Chantilly lace sleeves terminating in petal points. The billowing skirt was fashioned of multiple layers of tulle with the outer forming a scalloped design. From a tiara of seed pearls fell the fingertip veil of nylon tulle edged with Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid and outlined with handmade white satin leaves and white satin streamers.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Friona Clubhouse to honor the couple. Miss Jo Parker registered the 130 guests.

Laid with a white linen cutwork cloth, the serving table was centered with a basket of white mums and gilded leaves flanked by four white candles in crystal holders. The three-tiered wedding cake, surmounted by a miniature bride and groom under an archway of wedding bells, was served by Miss Jo Phillips of Friona. Mrs. Fred Standley, Jr., presided at the coffee service.

For her going-away costume the bride chose a fitted navy blue English wool suit with navy accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from the center of her bridal bouquet.

Following a trip through Oklahoma and New Mexico the couple will be at home in Canyon.

Mrs. Standley was graduated from West Texas State College where she was a member of Alpha Chi, Delta Zeta Chi, and the Buffalo Masquers. She has been teaching in the Plainview Junior High School.

Mr. Standley is a graduate of West Texas State College where he was a member of Epsilon Beta fraternity. He is a veteran of the U. S. Navy, and is now assistant vice-president of the First National Bank of Canyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Errol Muckey and family from Nevada are visiting in the E. J. Larson home.

Buy, Build, Live in Canyon!

They were strangers in our town — he friendly, western born; she a homesick New Englander. We sat with them at a church supper. There were four of us, and we were older, so we included them in the talk.

"You'll soon love it here," we said with confidence.

Her eyebrows lifted ever so little: "I don't think so," she said quietly. "There's nothing to do."

"Nothing to do!" we chorused. Then the spouse, who never has time for half the things he enjoys doing, launched into a description of the town's opportunities. All around us were other young women working earnestly in the church supper and bazaar.

Her husband looked at her fondly: "We've been in the West four years and she hasn't learned to like it yet," he said.

Soon our talk drifted into the intimate jargon of old friends and we saw the longing in her face. She's unhappy because she left her heart in New England, we thought. She packed it away in mothballs in her home town. She can't learn to like our town until she sends for her heart. Meanwhile, her husband, already getting ahead in his profession, is trying to "make a home where the heart is" all by himself.

We wanted to whisper: "Wake up quickly, little girl! Your handsome man belongs in the West. When you chose him, you chose his way of life. If you let this chance go by, you'll regret it the rest of your days!"

It's easy to forget, when our senses are dulled by the nearness of the familiar, that the little gestures of friendliness we make toward strangers can touch off their pleasure at living in our town. And what seems to be coldness on their part is only a tremendous longing to feel at home again.

Has Part in Opera
At Louisiana Uni.

Baton Rouge, La.: Glenn Dowlen, Jr., of Canyon, portrayed the role of secret police agent, when Menotti's "The Consul" was presented Thursday and Friday as a fall opera workshop production at Louisiana State University.

"The Consul" is a tragedy of bureaucracy and red tape as represented by a consulate and its handling of immigration visas. It shows different people caught in a mesh of negligence, callousness and cruelty. The setting is the present in a large European city.

Doll's Birth Is Modern Miracle In US Toyland

ALBANY, N.Y.—Miss America, five years old, reaches out to take a doll off the store counter. She snuggles it in her arms; she is happy because it looks, feels and is dressed like a real baby—a doll her mother or grandmother couldn't have when they were young.

Behind the happiness of a child with a 1952 doll is the story of a growing business, of giant machines, modern production methods and nimble fingers. The birth of a doll is complicated, beginning at the designer's table, going through the various stages where legs and arms, heads and bodies are made and put together, down to the final careful details of the hairdress and clothing for the finished, cuddly doll.

Lifelike Miracle
The modern American doll is a miracle of lifelike detail, closely imitating every feature of the real infant or child. The doll's skin is often made of modern plastic materials, such as vinylite, which are as soft and "living" to the touch as the skin of a flesh-and-blood baby. Nylon, saran and other new synthetic yarns are used for hair that can be combed, waved and set as easily as human hair. Doll costumes, patterned after actual baby and child clothing, are hand- and machine-sewed by skilled workers with as much care as the real thing.

Dolls, once stiff, lifeless or "floppy" as in the rag variety, can now do almost anything a live baby can do. They sleep and they speak—not only the simple cry of "mama" but full sentences through the use of recording tape. Today dolls can be fed with a baby bottle and, following the normal course of nature, will wet their diapers.

American Ingenuity
The ingenuity of the American doll industry made possible this revolution in the design and manufacture of dolls. Before World War I, most dolls were imported from Europe, but, with the end of Central European trade in 1917, the American manufacturers took over the field. In the years since, American doll makers won a lead which they have never lost.

Modern mass-production methods and research into the play habits of children produced a new line of realistic dolls which has captured the affections of children.

Thank School Physics For Modern Miracles

SCHENECTADY, N.Y.—Don't be fooled by flashing lights spinning dials and rasping buzzers of modern scientific measuring instruments. The thing that really makes 'em tick is a principle out of that old high school physics book.

In fact, instrument engineers at the General Electric Company's general engineering laboratory here say most instruments are merely simple high school physics principles neatly wrapped in a carrying case.

Thumb-worn pages of elementary physics books at the laboratory indicate the popularity of simple principles when engineers are stuck for solutions to developmental problems.

Take that old principle concerning the boiling point of liquids—which decreases as altitude increases. It's riding high since being lifted from high school physics books to weather balloons for measuring altitudes up to 30 miles.

The principle is wrapped in a tiny and inexpensive instrument called a hypsometer. Liquid is brought to a boil in the device before being sent aloft. As the balloon rises, temperature of the liquid drops, but so does the boiling point. Temperature data from the continuously-boiling liquid are radioed to earthbound observers by the balloon's automatic transmitter, and in this way, the balloon's altitude can be calculated.

Bent Starlight Sends Scientist to Africa

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A National Geographic Society scientist is on his way to Khartoum, capital of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, in hope of proving that star light bends.

Dr. George Van Biesbroeck, professor emeritus of astronomy at Chicago University's Yerkes Observatory, left Washington to complete a study begun during last February's total eclipse of the sun over Khartoum.

Using a giant telescope camera, Dr. Van Biesbroeck photographed the star field beyond the blacked-out sun, obtaining spectacular eclipse pictures. The telescope was left locked in position.

By photographing the same star field six months later—but in the night sky—the astronomer-physicist hopes to measure accurately the so-called "Einstein Shift," an apparent displacement in the position of the stars.

Years ago, Dr. Albert Einstein predicted that one of the proofs of his theory of relativity would be the observation of a slight bending in the rays of light from distant stars as the rays pass near the sun.

Red Hair Brings Success in T. V., Survey Indicates

EVANSTON, Ill.—Even without color television, your chances of success are apparently assured on TV if you've got red hair.

At least that's what is indicated by the latest survey of television habits among students, parents, and teachers conducted by Dr. Paul Witty of Northwestern University's school of education.

Witty's third annual study, conducted in four of Chicago's larger suburbs, shows that top popularity ratings were given to "I Love Lucy," which stars auburn-haired Lucille Ball, comic "Red" Skelton, and red-headed Arthur Godfrey.

That's the way it went with children of elementary and high school age who gave Miss Ball and Skelton as their first two preferences respectively, and among the parents who voted Godfrey into the Number Two spot behind Lucy, the study shows.

The teachers showed their individuality and refused to follow the crowd, however. They said they preferred the news commentators (most of whom are brunettes) and put Miss Ball into fifth place—right after Clifton Utey.

Dr. Witty says there may be an explanation for the teachers' deviation in the fact that they report watching television an average of only 10 hours a week, while parents said they viewed an average of 21 hours and elementary school pupils reported an average of 23 hours. Evanston high school pupils averaged 14 hours a week in 1952, as compared with 12 in 1951.

Both parents and children increased the number of hours this year from 1951's 19 hours of viewing to 21 and 23 respectively, exploding the theory that television dropped after the novelty had worn off.

St. Louis Woman Can't Lose Wallet

ST. LOUIS—It seems as if Mary Chapman can't keep her wallet for very long. Nor can she lose it for very long either.

The wallet was returned to the 17-year-old girl recently for the 20th time in the two years that she has owned it.

Mary has left the wallet on street cars, buses, trains, in restaurants, theaters and waiting rooms. The last time it and the $10 in it were mailed back to her.

Says Mary, "I guess I'm careless."

Plane Has No Room For Refugee's Leg

NEW YORK—Miss Hana Pavlickova, 24, was the last person aboard a single-seater crop-duster plane which flew over the Czech border into the American zone of Germany, so she had to ride with one leg dangling from the crowded plane to escape her Communist homeland. She arrived in New York recently as a refugee.

"I couldn't get one leg inside," she said. "I told the pilot to go ahead anyway, that it made no difference."

She said the crop duster plane had been spraying potato fields which Czech propagandists said had been infested with a plague by American planes.

A man and woman friend joined her in escaping with the pilot. They tricked soldier guards, she said, by explaining they were going to make a test to determine whether a single-seater plane could fly with four persons aboard.

Popcorn Is Not Just 'Blamed Contrary'

SCHENECTADY, N.Y.—Some kinds of corn will pop, but not others, because corn pops when the heat converts water present in the grain to steam and the sudden expansion, really a tiny explosion, bursts the starch granules. Corn for popping must be of the flint variety, in which the starchy part, or endosperm, is surrounded by a horny layer. This holds back the expanding steam until it has force enough to explode. In sweet and dent field corn, the starchy endosperm is not so surrounded. This, and the fact that the sides are flat rather than rounded, as in the flint variety, allows the moisture to seep out gradually during heating. No steam pressure is built up and there is no explosion.

Television Is Planned For Blind Persons

NEW YORK—Blind persons will soon be buying special television sets for the blind—minus the screen.

The American Foundation for the Blind plans to distribute radio sets that will pick up the sound portions of TV broadcasts.

Mrs. Sidney E. Pollack of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind, said the receivers would sell for $50 to $65 and allow blind persons to enjoy the sound of TV programs without the higher expense of a screen-equipped set.

THE SHOE FITTED
In Rumania, the secret police are often the target for underground humor. There is the story of the unhappy Rumanian shuffling down a Bucharest street muttering to himself, "Those dirty, rotten, low-down, no good so and sos."
A heavy hand fell on his shoulder, and a minion of the secret police stopped him.
"Come along," the policeman says, "You're under arrest for treasonable utterances against the authorities."
The citizen was indignant. "The authorities!" he cried. "Why, I never even mentioned them."
"No," says the cop, "but you described them perfectly."

Both Agree
She—"I remember the time when you were just crazy to marry me."
He—"So do I, but I didn't realize it at the time."

Curses, Foiled Again!
The journalism exam asked for definitions of some printing terms. Bewilderment showed in the student's face as he pored over "cur-sive." In desperation, he scratched out the final "ve" and added: "ng—what I feel like doing right now!"

No Beauty
Housewife—"I don't like the looks of that codfish."
Storekeeper—"Well, if you want looks, why don't you buy a gold-fish?"

NOUVEAU RICHE

A fabulously wealthy individual was bragging to his friend about all the money he had accumulated and all the things in life he enjoyed.
"I've got a limousine with a chauffeur," he said.
"So what?" his friend said. "Lot's of people have chauffeurs."
"I have a country house with 50 rooms," the rich man said.
"So what?" the friend answered.
"Lots of homes have 50 rooms."
"I have an 18-hole golf course," the millionaire persisted.
"So what?" the friend said. "I've heard of lots of people who have an 18-hole golf course."
"Inside the house?" the rich guy cried.

Fresh Kid
Young Lady (at counter)—"I want to see some gloves."
Clerk—"What kind, kid?"
Young Lady—"Sir, how dare you!"

Hot Stuff
Customer—"Are those eggs strictly fresh?"
Grocer (to his clerk)—"Feel of those eggs, George, and see if they're cool enough to sell yet."

Paid the Price
"What's the matter up at Tom's house?"
"They're taking 'im away in the ambulance for beatin' 'is missus."

GETTING ACTION

The little man was pushing his cart through the crowded aisles of the big supermarket.
"Coming through," he called merrily. No one moved.
"Gangway," he shouted. A few men stepped aside.
He ruefully surveyed the situation, thought a minute, and shouted: "Watch your nylons."
The women scattered.

50-50 CHANCE
The teacher was testing the knowledge of the kindergarten class. Slapping a half dollar on the desk, she said sharply, "What is that?" Instantly, a voice from the back of the row said, "Tails."

To The Letter
Caller—"Is the boss in?"
New Office Boy—"Are you a salesman, a bill collector or a friend of his?"
Caller—"I'm all three."
Office Boy—"The boss is in conference. He is out of town. Step in and see him."

NEWS LETTER

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS
of the 18th Congressional District

Organization of the 83rd Congress

The nation's Capital is rife with rumors as to possible fights in the organization of the 83rd Congress.

Most of these rumors concern the Senate. There was discussion for a time as to whether or not the Republicans would be able to take over and control the organization since Senator Wayne Morse, of Oregon, refused to say whether or not he would join with the Republicans in the organization of the Senate.

Actually, there is no doubt but that the Republicans will organize the Senate because if Senator Morse does not go along with the Republicans in the organization, they will still have a majority because the Vice-President will cast the deciding vote.

The chances are that Senator Morse will stay with the Republicans in the organization of the Senate, although he has been non-committal when the questions were put to him. Everyone here recognizes this fact and the parties are conducting their business at the present time on such assumption.

If there is a fight, it will be within the Republican Party as to who will be the Majority Floor Leader. I sincerely hope that such a fight will be avoided because it could cause delays and obstacles in getting on with the work that must be done by Congress. Such a fight would re-open many of the wounds of the convention that grew out of the Taft-Eisenhower fight. Many of these wounds have measurably healed and it would be silly for them to be re-opened and aggravated.

General Eisenhower is the duly elected President of the United States, and it is the duty of everyone, regardless of party or faction, to lend all possible assistance to a speedy and peaceful organization of the new Congress.

Some sources here think that Eisenhower may use his influence to name a floor leader with whom he is friendly and closely related. However, the senators who are most likely to take over this job have stated that they do not expect the President-elect to intervene. Some of their statements have gone far enough to indicate that they would consider it undue interference by the President if he should enter into the floor leader controversy.

However, it will be remembered that Roosevelt intervened in such a transaction and obtained the election of Barkley to that position, the same Barkley who is now Vice-President.

The truth is that the members of the Senate deeply resent interference from the executive branch of the government in the organization of their body, and rightfully so. Although the executive and legislative branches must cooperate they are still separate and distinct branches of the government and must remain independent of each other.

There is little likelihood of any kind of fight shaping up in the organization of the House of Representatives. Congressman Joe Martin, of Massachusetts, is slated to be Speaker. He was Speaker in the 80th Congress and there is little doubt but that he will become Speaker of the 83rd Congress.

A move was started to promote Representative Charles Halleck, of Indiana, for the speaker's job. Both Mr. Martin and Mr. Halleck are fine gentlemen and able representatives, and could ably fill the Chair. The move behind Mr. Halleck originated because Mr. Halleck was one of the earliest supporters of General Eisenhower. Representative Martin was a strong supporter and ardent admirer of General MacArthur. Present indications are that Martin will be the Speaker.

However, this could easily change within the next few weeks. Organization of the House, both on the Republican and the Democratic side, should be peaceable and the House of Representatives should be about its work soon after it convenes.

The Big Headache

How to cut the budget is the big problem that is facing the incoming administration on the domestic front.

If this country is to operate on a balanced budget, there must be some trimming. The present budget is in excess of the income of the Federal Government. Therefore it follows that a cut in the budget does not necessarily mean early reduction of taxes.

A sizable cut in the budget is an indispensable predicate, not only to balance the budget, but to create a means of eventual tax reduction. The budget must be cut to around 60 billion dollars before there can be any tax reductions. Tax reductions brought about by reducing the budget to 60 billion dollars would not be much help to the individual.

The tax reduction would actually be less than ten per cent. There could be sizable cuts in the budget without any appreciable tax reduction to the lower income groups. That is, the over-all tax structure could be reduced by the reduction of certain phases of that tax structure applicable to the higher income groups and the corporations.

If such policy was followed, it would mean that the lower income groups would get very little or no benefit from such reductions.

It has been my hope and desire that the first tax reductions go to the lower income group, as they are certainly sorely in need of it. The fastest way to obtain this result is to increase the personal and dependent exemptions. I introduced a bill last session of Congress that would do this, and I intend to re-introduce the bill in the coming session of Congress.

An Interesting Sidelight

I have just had a visit with a gentleman who has returned from an extended tour of Continental Europe, the Near East and Northern Africa. He tells me that the use of an oxen and a horse for plowing in Europe is not because the farmer can't get two oxen or two horses. The horse and oxen team is used for a definite reason. The horse keeps the furrow and the oxen does the pulling. The same thing is true in the use of a camel and a horse or donkey in plowing in Northern Africa.

INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Miss Irene Angel has received word that her sister, Mrs. Beulah Bell, was seriously injured in an automobile accident in Albuquerque, N. M., Thursday evening. Mrs. Bell is ill with pneumonia following the accident which broke her collar bone and several ribs.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bell of Ft. Stockton are the parents of a daughter, born November 14. Mrs. Bell will be remembered as Margaret Lair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lair.

Each With His Own Plans

Thanksgiving Is Result of Health Movement in USA

A primary reason for the institution of Thanksgiving Day was health. The Pilgrims, the few of them left after that terrible first year of death and disease, wanted to publicly thank God for all his mercies. And so was born the tradition of Thanksgiving.

We have come a long way since that time in the matter of health said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. Today few people think of Thanksgiving in connection with the health they enjoy. We are so accustomed to good health that we hardly give it a thought — until illness strikes.

The Texas State Department of Health, city and county health organizations have labored for years to secure the measure of health protection that the public now enjoys. Their thanks are to medical science for the strides it has made in preventive medicine, enabling thousands of lives to be saved annually.

Since that first Thanksgiving, the mode of transportation of many diseases have been discovered and the known preventives of diseases have become common knowledge.

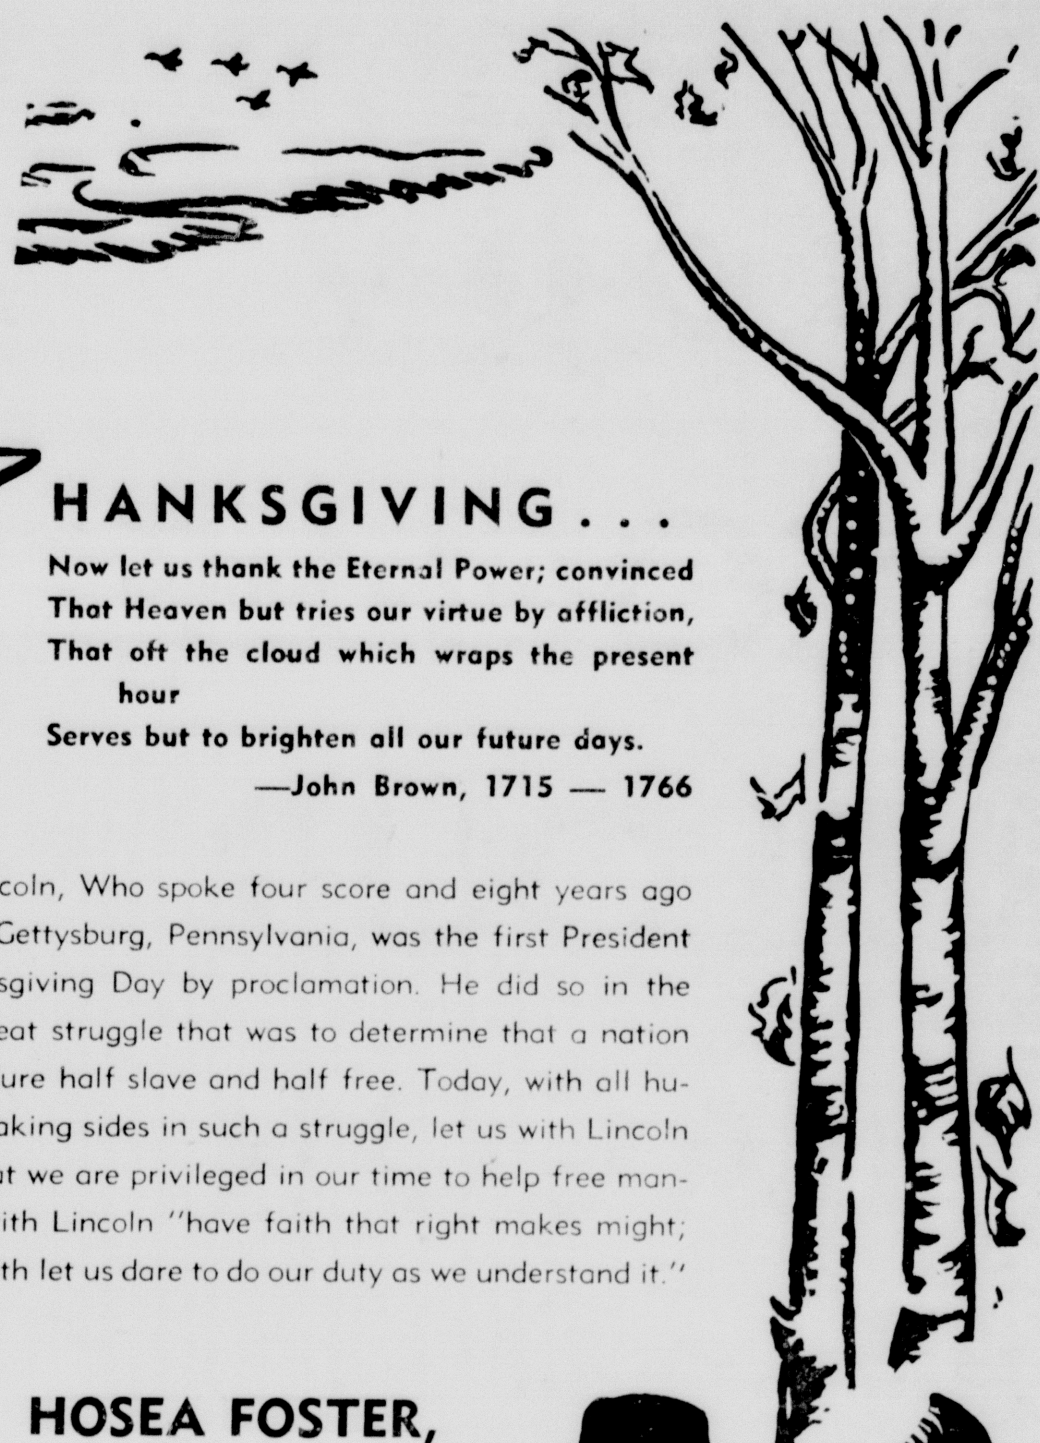

Yellow fever, plague, and cholera have almost ceased to exist. Smallpox, diphtheria, and typhoid fever can be eliminated as a cause of death if a person takes advantage of immunization. Malaria and other diseases can be controlled if the public demand for their control, as a part of every day activities of the government, be insistent enough.

We have much more to be thankful for, in the matter of health, than did our Pilgrim forefathers, so let us in our individual Thanksgivings be reminded of the strides preventive medicine is making in improving health conditions in Texas.

Pvt. Roy Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edd Reynolds, and Pvt. Wilbert Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Long, from San Luis Obispo, Calif., are spending a seven day leave in the homes of their parents.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Bradford Black arrived here Sunday to visit in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Black. They will return to Miami, Fla., where Dr. Black is a practicing dentist.

Mr. and Mrs. John Poole and children of Vaughan, N. M., visited over the week-end in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Barnard and with other relatives and friends.

HANKSGIVING...

Now let us thank the Eternal Power; convinced That Heaven but tries our virtue by affliction, That oft the cloud which wraps the present hour Serves but to brighten all our future days.

—John Brown, 1715 — 1766

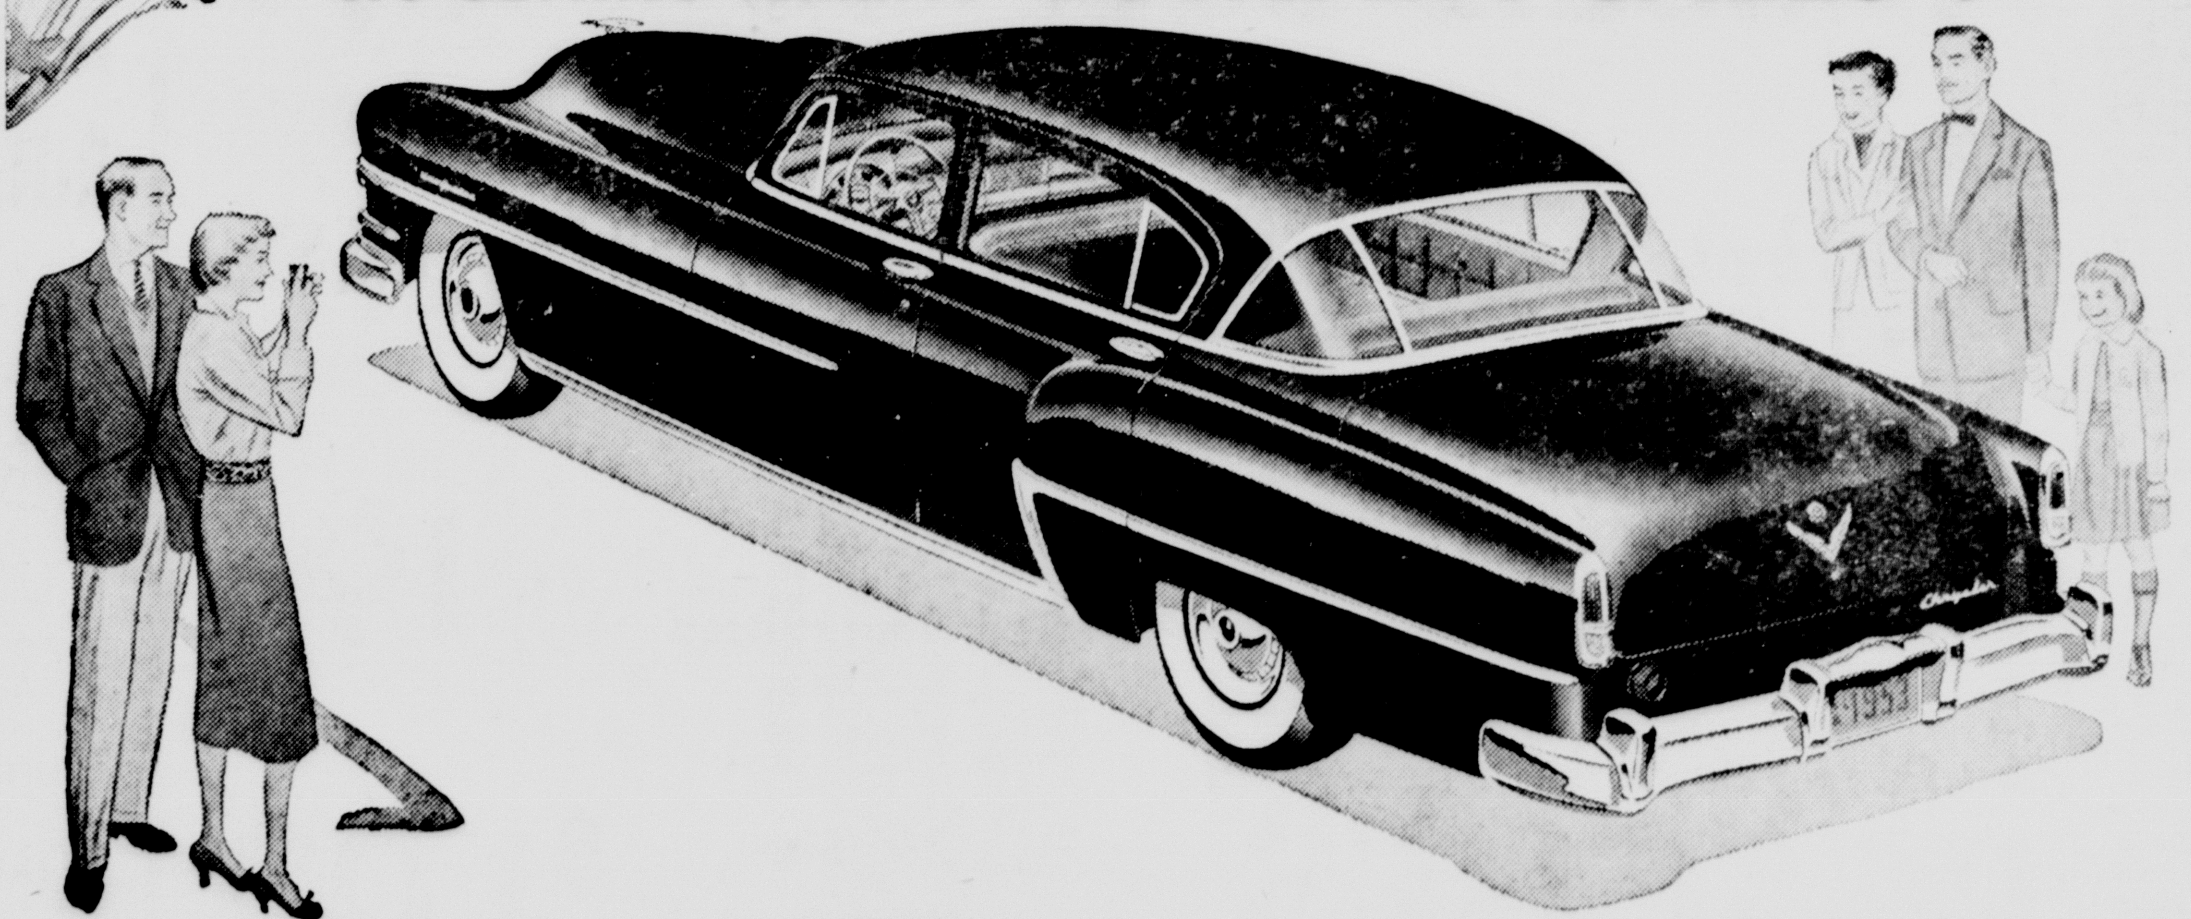

Abraham Lincoln, Who spoke four score and eight years ago last week at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, was the first President to fix Thanksgiving Day by proclamation. He did so in the midst of a great struggle that was to determine that a nation could not endure half slave and half free. Today, with all human society taking sides in such a struggle, let us with Lincoln thank God that we are privileged in our time to help free mankind; let us with Lincoln "have faith that right makes might; and in that faith let us dare to do our duty as we understand it."
